IT IS WORTH A HUNDRED TIMES ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

READ AND LEARN HOW

Finding ourselves with too many suits and overcoats, and not desiring to carry the same over another season, we have determined rather to sacrifice them, and for that purpose have determined on a plan both to rid ourselves of what goods we can in a legitimate way and also to test what benefit we get by advertising in this paper. For that reason we have attached a 10 per cent. coupon to this "add," and will during the time prescribed in the coupon refund 10 per cent. of your purchase in cash, providing the coupon is presented immediately after the purchase is made. This is an offer which will probably never occur again, and is clearly a great loss to us.

DO YOU REALIZE WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU?

If not, read this price list and then deduct 10 per cent. from the prices and you will see that you get a GENUINE CUSTOM MADE garment for 40c on the dollar of what it was originally made for.

Remember, we are located Directly on the Corner of Madison and Superior streets.

IN THE BEE TO-DAY

WEATHER.

Local forecast for this vicinity for today: Light sleet and snow; much colder. For Sunday, cloudy, probably snow, with a cold wave.

Yesterday's storm is central this morning over Lake Huron, moving northeast. High northwest wind will prevail here to-day and to-night. A sudden drop in temperature will occur to-morrow as soon as it begins to clear. The temperature will continue cold until Tuesday. The minimum will probably reach 10 above zero Sunday night.

The lowest temperature reported this morning was 24 below zero at St. Vincent, Minn.; the highest was 60 degrees above at Jacksonville, Fla. The highest here yesterday was 56 degrees; the lowest 29 degrees. Total rainfall Friday .04 in.

FLOWER AND SHEEHAN.

Both Men Inducted Into Office in Albany.

The Great Empire State in the Hands of Democrats, Who Will Not Allow Her to ... Backward

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Yesterday was the day on which Roswell P. Flower assumed the functions of chief executive so long wielded by David B. Hill.

The streets of old Albany were alive with residents and out-of-town sightseers as early as 9 o'clock.

The inaugural ceremonies were held in the assembly chamber, which was gorgeously decorated with American flags, bunting and potted plants. The chamber and the galleries were filled to overflowing long before the inaugural party arrived.

Gov. Hill came over to the executive chamber from the Mansion about 11 o'clock. Shortly before 12 o'clock the Tenth battalion, Burgess corps, and the Emmett guards formed in front of the Mansion, which was surrounded with people. They escorted the new governor to the capitol.

Mayor Manning, followed by a committee of prominent Albanians, acted as escort. Following the escort were the civic societies, the famous Buffaloes of this city, the Democratic Tigers, the Queen City Democratic Legion of Buffalo and delegations from other cities. Mr. Flower and his honorary escort rode in open barouches, Mayor Manning riding with Gov. Flower.

The streets along the line of march were crowded, and on many private residences the American flag was generously displayed. The military display, in accordance with Mr. Flower's expressed wish, was simple. The procession stopped at the State street entrance of the capitol, where Mr. Flower and the direct escort entered, being met by his staff. They proceeded to the executive chamber, where they met Gov. Hill and staff, who formally received Mr. Flower.

The party then proceeded to the assembly chamber, where they were enthusiastically received. The assemblage was called to order by Mayor Manning, Bishop Doane following with prayer. At the conclusion of the latter, Gov. Hill, in a brief speech, in which any reference to political questions was carefully avoided, transferred the duties of his office to Mr. Flower.

Mr. Flower responded in a brief and appropriate speech, in which he made no promises, but asked that he be judged by his deeds rather than his words.

Secretary of State Rice then stepped forward and administered the oath of office to Mr. Flower and Lieut.-Gov. Sheehan. The ceremonies were brought to a close by Bishop Doane pronouncing the benediction. The inaugural party then returned to the executive chamber, where a public reception was held for over an hour, during which both Gov. Flower and ex-Gov. Hill were kept busy shaking hands with the immense crowd, which availed itself of the opportunity of meeting the incoming and outgoing executives.

A MIDNIGHT CONCERT

Welcomed the New Year in New York.

Gilmore's Concert on the City Hall Steps at the First Break of 1892

New York, Jan. 2.—As the first stroke of Trinity church chimes announced the birth of 1892 Patrick S. Gilmore and one hundered members of his band hailed the coming of the new year by playing the national anthem "Hail Columbia" on the portico of the City Hall.

The purpose of this special demonstration was to welcome the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus.

Mr. Gilmore said he first thought of this manner of celebrating the anniversary while coming home from his western tour. He laid the proposition before the members of his band, and they unanimously decided to volunteer their services for the occasion.

The mayor signed the resolution of the board of aldermen permitting the band to play. The City Hall was lighted before midnight, and a great crowd was in attendance to hear the band render the following program:

"Hail Columbia," "Red, White and Blue," "Star Spangled Banner," "Yankee Doodle," "Gilmore's 'Columbia,'" which first appeared December 25, 1879, and which is now sung and played all over the land, "America," "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," "Old Hundred," "Praise God! From Whom All Blessing Flow."

ON THE RIO GRANDE

A Battle Has Been Fought in Texas.

The United States Troops Were Victorious.

Garza's Followers Number Two Hundred.

They Are Desperate and Hard Men to Fight.

The Greatest Danger is That They Will Divide Up Into Squads, and Passing for Ranchers, Will Plunder the Settlers Along Their Route.

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 2.—A battle has been fought between Capt. Bourke's command and Garza's forces, and the United States troops are undoubtedly in a very critical position at present.

The fears of Gen. Stanley for the safety of Capt. Bourke and his men were greatly augmented yesterday by the receipt of a dispatch from Capt. Francis T. Hardie, of the Third cavalry.

The dispatch came from a small station on the Mexican Central railroad, where it had been sent by courier. It was so badly garbled in transmission that the exact meaning could not be made out, but enough was gleaned from it, however, to learn that an engagement had taken place between Capt. Bourke's men and the revolutionists, and that the former are in a critical position.

Gen. Stanley, who ordered the dispatch repeated, has received no reply as yet. The fight occurred in either Starr or Duval county, and it is known that Garza's men largely outnumbered the troops.

The point is so difficult of access that it is feared that no relief can reach Capt. Bourke in time to save his command from annihilation.

The following dispatch was sent to Gen. Schofield by Gen. Stanley last night:

"The lines have not been in working order for the past three days. The following is the condition of affairs on the Rio Grande: From the latest reports received this evening at 9 o'clock Capt. Hardie, of the Third cavalry, reports that he struck a camp of about 200 of Garza's followers on the 29th inst., at sundown, in a dense chapparal near Garza's ranch.

"Capt. Brook's company of Texas rangers and troop A, Third cavalry, under Lieuts. Beach and Short, were with him, as were also Captains Bourke and Mackay, Third cavalry from Ringgold, yesterday.

"Capt. John G. Bourke, Third cavalry, reports that Capt. Hardie has with him Capt. Brooks, of the Texas rangers, and a force of deputy marshals, under Sheriff Haynes, of Carrizo, and some Mexican trailers sent him by Gen. Lorenza Garcia.

"This command, with troop A, Third cavalry, struck the bandits and the latter retired and Bourke thinks they will not fight unless cornered. The great danger is that these bandits will break into small squads and plunder innocent citizens.

"They have a perfect organization, a good system of signals, know the country thoroughly and being without uniform, can change themselves into ranchmen and go as herders in five minutes. A general round up of ranches must be made from Palto Blanco, which will be done as soon as possible.

"Hardie marched his command over fifteen hours continually, but was unable to bring the outlaws to bay, because of darkness.

"Listo Longoria, who led the outlaws at Retinal, is a prisoner in the guardhouse at Ringgold and will be taken to Brownsville and turned over to officers of the department of justice. Bourke will get from him all he knows. There are a few—four or five—prisoners in the guard-house at Ringgold to whom Capt. Bourke has issued blankets.

Later.—Lieutenant Langhorne has just arrived at Ringgold bringing the prisoner captured by Capt. Hardie. This man is horribly wounded.

The prisoner admits being shot in the fight a few days since, and was one of Garza's men, but will not say he was fighting United States troops. He says he was hit in a fight near Tartillas ranch, where Garza had two men killed and two wounded. Tartillas is in Mexico.

Two men in Garza's band are reported wounded in Bourke's fight at Retinal. One man of Longhorne's detachment run into three of Garza's people and fired upon them. He killed one horse and found in the saddle pockets evidence showing that the owner was an officer on Garza's command. Hardie is pressing the revolutionists very hard. They are very broken, but may come together in small squads and continue their depredations.

State Troops Do the Fighting.

Laredo, Tex., Jan. 2.—Thursday evening Capt. Brito, with his company of state rangers, assisted by Sheriff Closner and deputies, raided the Joya ranch, 22 miles above Hidalgo, Tex. They found the rendezvous of Francisco Villazsal, Juan Alanis, and other notorious cut-throats belonging to Catarino Garzas' band. Capt. Brito had no previous understanding with the United States marshals and troops from Fort Ringgold, who raided the upper part of this thicket, while Capt. Brito was pushing his way through the lower end. This little misunderstanding caused the bandits to pick up and leave in fine shape. They broke for the river. Francisco Vasques, Manuel Curas and Juan Lijermo swam across, but only to fall into the hands of the Mexican troops on the other side and they were captured and jailed at Reynosa, Mexico. One of Santo Laiz, another bandit, was captured on this side of the river.

Capt. Brito and Sheriff Closner left yesterday on another raid and will scout the entire country. The following statement is obtained from a resident of Carrizo, Tex., in regard to Capt. Hardie's scout after Garza on or about the 21st inst.:

It was supposed Garza would cross at a point six miles above Carrizo, known as the Chevena Pass, but the revolutionists crossed at the Tortillas' ranch and had a skirmish with Rural Guards. In the fight there were six Mexicans killed. A woman was among the number. Hardie had been hot on Garza's trail and was only three hours behind, but did not come up with them after the revolutionists had the skirmish with the Rurals.

The revolutionists broke for the river and were pursued by the Mexican cavalry. Major Esquibet, commanding troops at Guerrero, Mexico, sent a courier over to Capt. Hardie asking him to move his company further down the river, as Garza's men were making for the other side. Hardie moved at once with Sheriff Haynes, but Garza had made good his escape. Hardie then returned to Carrizo.

STOLE THE CHURCH COLLECTION

Tiffin, O., Jan. 2.—(Special)—A burglar who was familiar with the interior of the residence of Rev. M. Healy, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, entered his house through a window last night and robbed his desk of a church collection amounting to about $25.

STRONG INDORSEMENT.

London Papers Find Time to Compliment Our Navy.

London, Jan. 2.—The St. James Gazette, referring to the improvements recently made in the United States navy, says that "in spite of occasional mistakes, the Americans are making steady and surprising progress towards becoming a great naval power," adding "there is not the smallest doubt of their ability to do so."

There is no doubt that the new United States navy is attracting much earnest attention in Europe and the result of the gun trials of the double turreted monitor Miantonomoh are being closely watched here.

KILLED IN A SALOON.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 2.—In a saloon row early yesterday morning, Joseph McGraw struck and killed Mat Phelan. McGraw is under arrest. The men were celebrating New Year's eve, and got into a dispute and Phelan was knocked down and his skull was fractured by striking the pavement.

K. OF P. RECEPTION.

Wauseon, O., Jan. 2.—(Special)—The Wauseon K. of Ps., No. 156, gave their second annual New Year's reception at Castle Hall, yesterday afternoon and evening. Several hundred guests were present. The hall was given over into the hands of the guests during the afternoon and evening, and at 9 p. m. all sat down to a delightful repast.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Roswell B. Mason, who was mayor of Chicago during the fire of 1871, died last night.

T. B. WARD DEAD.

Indianapolis, Jan. 2.—Ex-Congressman T. B. Ward died here Friday.

MORE DEMOCRATIC NEWS.

Boyd Will Be Placed in the Governor's Chair.

Supreme Court to Overrule the Lower Court.

The Steal Perpetrated by the Republicans of Nebraska Will Be Thwarted and the People's Verdict Rejected.

New York, Jan. 2.—The Washington correspondent of the Times says that the United States supreme court will soon announce its decision in the Thayer-Boyd case, which will settle the question as to who is the legal governor of Nebraska.

The dispatch says that the decision will reverse the judgment of the Nebraska supreme court which declared Boyd ineligible for the office on the ground that he was not a citizen, and will declare Boyd the governor of that state. This result, says the correspondent, will be secured by a vote of 6 to 3 in favor of Boyd.

Thayer was the republican nominee and Boyd the democratic. The decision will not only be interesting as a political incident, but also as a precedent.

INTO A CONVENT.

Tiffin, O., Jan. 2.—(Special)—At the Ursuline convent Miss Nellie Coyle, of Pennsylvania, and Miss Nora Marony, of this city, took the white veil.

Sisters Aloysius and Xavier took the irrevocable vows connected with the assumption of the black veil. Mgr. Boff was present, and Fr. Moran, of Clyde, delivered the address.

PERKINS GOT THERE.

Topeka, Ks., Jan. 2.—Gov. Humphries has appointed B. W. Perkins to succeed the late Senator Plumb.

He was born in Ohio.

THEY RAIDED THE CAR

And Drove Away the Non-Union Men.

Western Railroad Men Who Did Not Propose to Have Their Jobs Taken Away.

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 2.—There is great excitement in railroad circles over the ejection of a car load of "scab" railway employes at Argenta, who were en route from Indianapolis and Louisville to Aransas Pass to relieve the striking Santonio & Aransas Pass railroad.

Telegrams had been received ordering breakfast for the party, and in this way the information was received by the railway employes at Argenta and Little Rock. Conductor McElroy, who had charge of the train carrying the special Southern Pacific sleeper, in which the party was traveling, received a telegram at a point about Poplar Bluffs, Mo., signed by Roadmaster Green at Argenta, asking him to cut out the car to Poplar Bluffs.

The order seemed so unaccountable that McElroy telegraphed back to Green for further orders. Green was astonished at the inquiry, being totally ignorant of such an order, and telegraphed McElroy to bring the car on to Argenta.

At 10:30 Sunday morning a crowd of several hundred men, chiefly railroad employes, were at the Fort Smith & Iron Mountain crossing when the "Cannon Ball" from St. Louis steamed in. No sooner had the train arrived when a burly man with a black slouch hat cried out to the crowd: "Cut the hose and we'll drop the car out."

A hundred men rushed to his bidding, the hose was cut and the car and another sleeper in the rear were cut. When the train started for Little Rock, the mob having neglected to cut the bell cord, the engineer's bell rang and stopped the train.

By this time all the engine whistles in the yard began to blow and it seemed that bedlam had broken loose. A hundred men rushed to the fated sleeper, driving the occupants, some forty telegraph operators, machinists and brakemen, thoroughly alarmed, from the car and into the swamps a hundred feet beyond.

Most of the men were driven into a pond, through which they floundered, followed by their infuriated pursuers. The sleepers were recoupled to the train and it crossed the river into Little Rock, where a crowd of men boarded the car and with knives cut to pieces all the baggage of the unfortunate scabs, tossing it through the car windows into the yards.

J. H. Littlefield, who was in charge of the party of scabs, and several of his companions who escaped the mob, having taken refuge in the rear sleeper, took a train for Texas, while the other members of the party are hidden in the swamps awaiting opportunity to escape. The railroad authorities are enraged at this action of their employes. The various labor railroad unions are strong in their sympathy for their striking brothers in Texas, and it is fortunate that none of the party to take their places received any serious personal injuries.

RAGED WITH FURY.

A Heavy Storm Swept Over the West

Last Night and Left a Wake of Ruin.

Chicago Sustained Damages to Buildings.

A Cyclone Reported From Arkansas.

Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and Arkansas Were Visited and Many Buildings Raged — Toledo, as Usual, Escaped Without Damage.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Plate glass windows were smashed, awnings wrecked, signs broken, structural work on new buildings levelled, patrol and street car starter boxes upset in the gale that swept over Chicago from 12 to 2 o'clock this morning.

The lake was wild, the waves beating the breakwater in a mighty roar and the spray shooting up 50 feet into the air, then to be frozen and carried far out on the lake.

There were no vessels out, as a visit to the barge office showed, and little would have been left of any of the lake craft caught outside of the harbors in last night's gale.

Among the seamen the wind was said to be the worst experienced since the wrecking of the new lake tunnel crib three years ago.

With Fearful Force.

Texarkana, Ark., Jan. 2.—A clycone storm three miles wide, moving three miles west of here yesterday wrecked many farm buildings and did much other damage. The houses of J. C. Wells and John Norris were destroyed, eight persons being buried in the ruins, but none seriously hurt.

SHIFTED HER CARGO.

Boston, Jan. 2.—The steamer State of Indiana, Capt. Beane, New York, December 29, for Bristol, England, is below and is coming up the harbor. She is heavily listed to port, her cargo having evidently shifted.

The Storm in General.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Dispatches from Milwaukee, Wis., Little Rock, Ark., and various points in Iowa and Illinois, report that the rain and fog of New Year's day was succeeded last night by a severe blizzard.

At Arkansas City, Ark., eleven buildings were blown down and several persons injured. No ideaths have been chroneled, but the damage to stockmen, small buildings and shrubbery will be very great.

DUBLIN CASTLE.

The Dynamite Explosion Discussed in the Papers.

Americans Alleged to be Behind the Affair in Order to Stimulate Contributions to the Irish Fund.

London, Jan. 2.—The Globe, which for more than 60 years supported the liberal party, but since 1866 has been a staunch conservative organ, to-day says that the explosion at Dublin Castle was undoubtedly of malicious origin.

Possibly Ford, Sullivan & Co. deem in necessary to stimulate the generosity of the American Irish in behalf of the cause. There are men in the United States, the Globe declares, who would not think twice of blowing up Dublin Castle if that appeared to be the most likely means of filling their pockets with dollars.

The Globe adds that the authorities should take all these facts into consideration and should not be in a hurry to attribute the outrage to a lunatic. There are many professional dynamiters in the United States, it says, who would jump at the chance of a lucrative job.

The St. James Gazette, which is an independent supporter of the conservative party, also had an article last evening on the Dublin explosion. It says that although there is no doubt that O'Donnovan Rossa will assume the credit of instigating the explosion, it seems unlikely that the affair was the result of a political plot.

The Dublin Express (Independent conservative), commenting upon the explosion at Dublin Castle, admits that it is impossible to attribute political motives to the affair. Not long ago, the Express says, an explosion would have been a good investment, and would have brought dollars from America, but since that time that style of political warfare has ceased to pay. The persons who were formerly engaged in dynamite politics have of recent years found their occupation gone.

The National Press, the organ of the McCarthyites, says it does not think the explosion can be attributed to an accident. It was undoubtedly the disgraceful and cowardly act of some blackguard for which it would be unjust to hold the Irish people responsible. There is no doubt, the paper says, that the tories will try to make political capital out of the explosion. They would be very willing to sacrifice a few panes of glass from the castle windows for the sake of being furnished with an argument against granting home rule to Ireland.

TOBACCO STATISTICS.

Another of Mr. Porter's Expensive Bulletins.

Facts and Figures Whose Value Are Ruined by the Doubt Which Exists as to Their Reliability.

Washington, Jan. 2.—The census office to-day issued a bulletin giving the statistics of the tobacco production in the United States during the year 1889.

The bulletin states that tobacco is produced, to a greater or less extent, in 42 states and territories, the only non-producing states being Idaho, Nevada, Rhode Island, and Wyoming, and the non-producing territories Oklahoma and Utah.

The entire crop of the country amounted in 1889 to 488,255,896 pounds, the number of planters being 205,852, and the area devoted to tobacco culture, exclusive of counties cultivating less than one acre, 692,990 acres, or 1,082.80 square miles.

The area in cultivation was, however, very unequally distributed, Kentucky having 39.62 per cent. of the total acreage and producing 45.44 per cent. of the entire crop, and the six states next in rank of production 30.16 per cent. of the acreage and 42.49 per cent. of the crop, while the twenty states and territories having the smallest production had less than 900 acres in tobacco and yielded an aggregate of only 451,025 pounds, or less than one-tenth of 1 per cent. of the entire crop.

The average production per acre of the entire country was 705 pounds, ranging among the seed leaf states, producing 5,000,000 pounds or upward, from 854 pounds per acre in Ohio to 1,402 pounds per acre in Connecticut, and 375 pounds per acre in North Carolina to 830 pounds per acre in Missouri.

The average area cultivated by each planter was 3.37 acres, and the average production of each planter 2,372 pounds.

The total value of the crop to the producers, estimated on the basis of actual sales, was $34,844,449, an average of 7.1 cents per pound, or $50.28 per acre. The average price per pound received by the producer in states producing 5,000,000 pounds or upwards ranged from 4.5 cents in Missouri and 4.7 cents in Maryland to 12.8 cents in Connecticut and 14.2 cents in North Carolina. The product of Louisiana averaged 25.2 cents per pound to the producer.

Although the total reported acreage in tobacco shows an increase of 8.48 per cent upon that in 1879, there is a decrease of 91 in the number of tobacco producing counties, there being now only 1,674 as compared with 1,765 in 1879. It is likewise worthy of note that the proportion borne by the crop of Kentucky to the entire production of the country is steadily increasing, having advanced from 24.90 per cent in 1859 and 36.20 per cent in 1879 to 44.44 per cent in 1889, as already stated.

The leading tobacco producing county of the entire country is Lancaster county, Pa., which yielded in 1889, 19,217,800 pounds, worth $1,349,090 to the producers. Christian and Henderson counties, Kentucky, each produced over ten million pounds, as did also Dane county, Wisconsin, and Pittsylvania county, Virginia.

Seventeen other counties, nine of which are in Kentucky, produced between 5,000,000 and 10,000,000 pounds each. The final report on tobacco will treat of the progress and present condition of the industry of home and foreign markets, the distribution of exports, etc., and will also contain summarized statements by leading tobacco producers throughout the country as to cultivation, curing, and marketing of leaf tobacco, the varieties most profitable for cultivation, fluctuations in production, diseases, and other destructive agencies, the effects of importation, etc.

STRANGE MISS FANCHER.

She Is Getting Her Second Sight Once More.

A Mysterious Case That Has Bothered the Medical Fraternity for Many Years.

New York, Jan. 2.—After being in abeyance for nearly nine years the marvellous power of second sight, or clairvoyance, is coming back to Miss Mary J. Fancher of Brooklyn, whose wonderful case startled the scientific and theological world thirteen years ago.

Scientists and theologians are still guessing and theorizing over the manifestations of a communication with the other or spirit world, made by Mollie Fancher, which were so wonderful that the closest investigation by the shrewdest men failed to discover any trickery.

The loss of Miss Fancher's powers of second sight was coincident with a strange change in her physical condition. This was about nine years ago. For seventeen years she was said to have lived on less nutriment than a healthy person would have consumed in a week. For thirteen of these years not a particle of solid food had entered her stomach. In fact, her stomach and intestines had shriveled up and virtually disappeared, and all abdominal functions ceased.

Then she began to crave the juice of fruits and occasionally the broth of mutton or beef. These she seemed to assimilate, and the functions of the body were resumed.

In a short time she began to gain flesh, and from a mere skeleton she rapidly assumed the proportions of a woman of robust health.

As Miss Fletcher's physical condition improved, her spirit, which had been a wanderer for years, staid with the physical body, and her clairvoyant power left her. At the same time her mental faculties became keener, and, in brief, she assumed the normal condition of a bright, brainy woman.

The return of her powers of second sight is a psychological mystery that will appeal to the scientific world as the original display of those powers did fifteen years ago.

Although Miss Fancher is now 42 years old, the physical beauty of her body, from the waist up, is perfect. The first indication that the strange power was returning to Miss Fancher was when her attendant, an intelligent French woman, entered her room a couple of weeks ago, and while arranging the covers of the bed that Miss Fancher had occupied for twenty-six years, was startled by the remark: I hear Prof. West's terrible cough. He is coming to see me."

The French woman had heard no cough, and hurried down stairs to see the professor. He was not there, and she had just about concluded that Miss Mollie was a victim of a delusion when the door opened and Prof. West walked in. As he entered the store on the ground floor he was coughing violently.

Miss Fancher is not only a cripple, but she is blind and deaf. Since the incident related above she has on several occasions announced the coming of visitors to the house on Gates avenue, Brooklyn, hours before their arrival, although in many cases she had never seen or heard of the callers.

DEATH AWAITED THEM.

Five Tramps in a Baltimore & Ohio Wreck.

One Section of a Train Crashes Into Another With Fatal Effect—The Year Starting Out Much as Last Year Did.

Columbus, O., Jan. 2.—Freight train No. 92, eastbound, on the Baltimore & Ohio last night at 9 o'clock, broke in two on a steep grade near Franklin, nine miles west of Bellaire, O.

One section of the train dashed down the grade with lightning rapidity for a distance of six miles and finally crashed into another train on a bridge.

Five tramps were on the broken section. Stratter Monnen, aged 18, was bruised across the abdomen; will die; home Campbell county, Virginia.

Martin Crony, both arms broken and hurt internally; will probably die; home Wheeling, W. Virginia.

The other three men were injured about the head and body; will probably recover.

CARS RUNNING TOO FAST

The Coroner's Verdict as to the Death of Ephriam Smith.

Coroner Roulet to-day makes public his verdict in the case of Ephriam Smith, an old man, killed by a Belt Line electric car on Dec. 4th, which is as follows: "After having heard the evidence and examined the body, I do find that the deceased came to his death by reason of being run over by car No. 11 of the Toledo Electric Street railway, the deceased not using much caution in his efforts to board the car and the motorman running at too high rate of speed."

LAYLIN THE MAN.

Sherman's Candidate Won the Prize.

Elected Speaker on the First Ballot.

A Fierce Contest at the State Capital

In Which Foraker's Man Was Downed.

The Man From Mansfield Carried Too Many Guns for "Coxey Old Boy" and the Rest of the Cincinnati Crowd.

Columbus, O., Jan. 2.—At 2 p. m. the senate and house caucuses for organization will be held, and the house caucus is expected to indicate very reliably the strength of the senatorial candidates. The Sherman men will vote for Laylin for speaker, and nearly all the Foraker men for McGrew. Dicks, of Cincinnati, concerning whose senatorial preferences there is doubt, will probably vote for Laylin for speaker and for Foster in the senatorial caucus. Welch, of Knox county, will vote for McKinley for senator on the first ballot. He will probably go to Foraker on the second ballot, while Dicks will probably go to Sherman. The Foraker men are growing very vindictive in their fight, and are particularly vigorous in their denunciation of Senator Sherman's course in filling the city with his federal appointees to work for him.

There does not seem to be any change in the situation this morning. The general feeling here seems to be, outside the Foraker headquarters, and with disinterested spectators, that the Sherman men are on "easy street" and that there is little doubt about the senator's re-election.

The senatorial caucus will now probably be held next Wednesday.

T. E. Harwood, editor and proprietor of the Springfield, O., Daily and Weekly Gazette, the organ of J. B. Foraker of Asa Bushnell's town, has given up all hope of Foraker defeating Senator Sherman. He declared that there is no possibility of such a thing occurring, and he was fully satisfied of it after due deliberation.

A Vote for Sherman.

Akron, O., January 2.—Representative C. O. Hale, who has been on the fence in the senatorial fight, has descended on the Sherman side. He announced his decision at 10 o'clock at the court house before republican leaders and left for Columbus. Foraker workers with their package of petitions didn't gain their object.

Spencer for Sherman.

Columbus, Jan. 2.—At noon, Spencer, of Cuyahoga, declared for Sherman, leaving only Pudney and Porter of that delegation to be claimed by Foraker.

ON THE SKIRMISH LINE.

Workers Pulling Hard to Secure the State House Crumbs.

Columbus, Jan. 2.—(Special)—At twelve o'clock the lobby of the Neil House is a mass of moving humanity, as hundreds of aspirants for minor positions in both branches desire to have one last pull at a senator or representative before the decision is made in caucus.

While these candidates are doing considerable hustling, workers for Laylin and McGrew are turning over every stone for success.

In fact, each one is pledging everything within his power if elected.

Managers of each side are flitting from member to member with messages from superior officers. It is the hardest political fight for supremacy ever made by the republican factions.

McGrew said to a Bee that he would be elected beyond doubt if the Sherman men did not pull off some of his friends who would vote for him for speaker, but for Sherman for senator.

If McGrew does not get some friends of the Mansfield statesman to vote for him he will be defeated.

Laylin claims that he has pledges from forty members. Of this number he is as sure of 38 votes as if he cast them himself.

Knowing ones and many present when he made this statement said he would have forty-three votes.

While there is a lull in the senatorial fight for the time being, it is only to take part in the preliminary scrimmage previous to organization of the house.

To-day is the first time that Griffin has shown himself very prominently, and he is getting in his best licks for McGrew and predicts his election without much trouble.

Chairman Hahn still insists that Sherman will be nominated for senator with hands down, notwithstanding all noise and hurrahing of Forakerites.

Will Heller Flop Again?

It is said that Heller, of Lucas, may again flop back to Sherman, and he is being closely watched by Noah Swayne and his contingent from Toledo, aided by the balance of federal office holders in this city.

Foraker replied to a question by the Bee that he had not time to talk, as he was busy at work with the members.

This shows that he wants to succeed with McGrew for speaker.

Foraker is Weakening.

Columbus, Jan. 2.—(Special)—W. C. McBride wires his paper this afternoon that the chance for Sherman's re-election is as five to one, and that Sherman's chances grow more favorable each hour. McBride believes that Foraker knows he is defeated and that he is only looking around now for some soft place to drop.

THE CAUCUS IN SESSION.

Dougherty, of Fayette, a Non-Committal, for Chairman of the House Caucus.

Columbus, Jan. 2.—Dougherty, of Fayette county, a non-committal, has been chosen chairman of the house caucus.

LAYLIN THE MAN.

He Was Nominated on the First Ballot.

Columbus, Jan. 2.—(Special)—Mr. Halcome, of Scioto county, presented the name of Laylin, the Sherman candidate for speaker, and Mr. Griffin, of Toledo, that of Mr. McGrew, the Foraker candidate.

First ballot—Laylin nominated, 38 votes; McGrew 34.

Lampson Gets There.

Columbus, Jan. 2.—Lampson elected president pro tem of the senate by acclamation.

GOOD SHIP PRESIDENT.

A Plan to Take Her to the World's Fair.

It Could Be Done Without Great Expense.

A Bit of History Made by the Craft Under the Command of the Gallant Decatur.

New York, Jan. 2.—The proposition to have the old ship President, which was captured from the United States by the British in the war of 1812, transferred to Chicago for the Columbian exhibition, is very generally approved by the officers of the navy so far as its sentiment goes, but the idea is hardly practical.

The old ship now lies in the West India dock near London, and although she makes an excellent ship for the nominal headquarters for British naval officers who are assigned to duty in London and an excellent drill ship as well, she is totally unable, because of her advanced age, to cross the Atlantic.

It has been urged that the president could be "boxed" by some means not yet described, and sent across in something like the way the Central park obelisk was shipped from Egypt, but this done, she is far too large to be sent through the Welland canal, so, then, on the whole, the scheme, although a graceful and becoming one, is thought to be impracticable.

The idea, in a general way, meets with the approval of British officers, who see in it a fitting opportunity to recognize the generous conduct of the Americans in returning to the English government the Resolute, which was recovered by the American officers after the English had lost her in the Arctic. But the obstacles mentioned are regarded as well nigh insuperable, so it is probable that the namesake of this one of America's most famous ships of war will remain where she now lies.

The old ship President has a history second to none in her days. Even the Constitution cannot lay claim to as many captures as those made by the President. In the war of 1812, until her capture in 1815, she went everywhere and performed feats of the most extraordinary valor. There was lots of fighting then, and the President, with her 44 guns and 400 men, was the terror of the seas.

The old frigate was built in this city in 1800 at a cost of $220,910. Her tonnage was 1,576. From the day she went into commission until that unfortunate battle of January 15, 1815, when a whole British squadron forced her to lower her colors right off the scene of her launching, the President was engaged in active service.

Commodore Stephen Decatur was in command when the ship was captured. She had been cruising upward from the Bermudas when the British squadron sighted and bore down upon him. There was a running fight of six hours, during which her Britannic majesty's ship Endymion, a 40-gun craft, was obliged to drop out of action. The gallant Decatur finally surrendered to the Majestic Razee, Capt. Hayes, having had 24 men killed and 55 wounded.

Both the Endymion and the President were soon after dismantled in a gale, and the complete demolition of the captive followed in a few years.

The first active service of the President was in the Mediterranean, where, in 1801 and 1802, she was the flagship of Commodore Richard Gale. From 1804 to 1809 she was the flagship of Commodore S. Barron, in the same waters, and from 1809 to the outbreak of hostilities with Great Britain she carried the flag of Commodore John Rodgers along her native coasts.

It was while the president carried Commodore Barron's flag in the Mediterranean that she fell in with a miserable little Tripolitan, mounting two guns, and the annihilation of the impudent African was accomplished in less time than it takes to write it, September 10, 1804. When she returned to Tripolitan waters the following year the president carried Consul-General William Eaton, and relieved Commodore Preble, in command of the squadron.

In the war with Great Britain the president made four remarkable cruises. June 21, 1812, she sailed out of this harbor with colors flying. August 31 she put into Boston, having captured one ship, three brigs and two schooners, mounting 16 guns and carrying 75 men. This little experience appears to have served only to whet the appetite of the frigate, for on October 8, having consumed only five weeks in preparation, she again cleared outward from Boston. When she returned to that port December 31, after a cruise along the coast, she brought with her a captive packet, the Swallow, mounting 12 guns and 30 men.

The president's next cruise, the third of this war, began April 30, 1813, and lasted until September 27. It was the largest and most successful cruise of her history, and it was full of some of the most glorious achievements of the war.

Early in June the ship appeared off North Cape, and for 60 days her name and fame spread consternation throughout the Irish channel.

Five brigs, one packet, one bark and two schooners, mounting in all 59 guns and carrying 300 men, were the results of her depredations. Some of these prizes were sent to France, some were burned and others were ransomed.

A very remarkable incident of this cruise was the capture by the president of the British schooner Highflyer, September 23. Commodore John Rodgers was in command of the frigate. The president, in the course of the day, hoisted a signal for private purposes, and this signal, by a remarkable coincidence, was the English private signal for the day. The Highflyer saw it and promptly came up, whereupon, without any hesitation, Rodgers pounced upon her.

The whole precedure is said to have mystified the Americans, who could not understand why an insignificant schooner belonging to the enemy should have the hardihood to engage with the 44-gun frigate. It was explained by the singular coincidence of the signals. The Highflyer was brought in this port and sold at auction for $11,000.

The president's fourth and last successful cruise of the war began December 5, 1813; and lasted until January 10, 1814, her operations being largely confined to the neighborhood of the Barbadoes. In the course of the cruise she captured two schooners and two ships, mounting 13 guns and carrying 40 men. All these prizes were sunk.

Gildemeester & Kroeger.

The most important piece of news in the piano manufacturing world of late is the resignation of P. J. Gildemeester as manager and partner of Chickering & Sons, New York, and joining all his capital, immense business capacity and energy with Kroeger & Sons.

The new firm will be Gildemeester & Kroeger, and will make the celebrated "Kroeger Piano" a still greater and more formidable competitor for the honors so long held by Chickering and Steinway.

Mr. Gildemeester has, for many years, been the head and front of the Chickering's New York house. He is one of the best known men in the piano trade, and his ability as a business manager is second to none.

This union will enable Henry Kroeger and his son to devote their whole time to the factory. Mr. Kroeger, sr., is well known as the greatest tone maker in pianos extant. He was for more than twenty years the superintendent of the Steinway factory, and his own pianos of the past twelve years have created a sensation in the piano world.

A SOLID INSTITUTION

The Mutual Aid, Building and Loan Company Makes a Splendid Showing.

The Mutual Aid, Building and Loan company closed its business for the last six months of the year ending December 31, 1891.

Though among the youngest of the organizations in the city, it is recognized as one of the safest and most substantial business enterprises of its kind in Toledo.

"It has been a year of unusual success with our company," said Secretary Theodore Schmidt to a Bee this morning. "Our receipts during the last year have been over $168,000. During the six months just completed our total receipts were $83,016.54. We have loaned on first mortgages $48,140, for the six months, aside from the loans on pass books. Our total earnings for this period were $8,854.59; total expenses, $755.59. We just declared a dividend of 4 per cent., amounting to $7,436.33; after this was paid we converted $762.67 to our reserve and surplus fund. Our total assets are now $238,185.27.

"Our organization was never in better condition and now is the time to subscribe for stock, in order to be on the dividend roll for next July."

CORONER ROULET

On the Last Day of His Term of Office—A Good Official.

Dr. S. W. Beckwith, coroner-elect, will assume the duties of that office next Monday when Coroner C. F. Roulet steps down and out.

During the past year Coroner Roulet has had 229 cases, and of these 39 deaths were caused by railway accidents. The month of December, just passed has been an especially busy one for him, and he has had 42 cases, a large proportion of these being deaths from railroad accidents.

Dr. Roulet held the office of coroner for four years, and has made an efficient official, giving entire satisfaction during that time, besides attending to a large medical practice.

Dr. Roulet is an especial friend of the newspaper men, and has placed the press of the city under many obligations to him. He is in a position where the reporters call on him every day, and he has always been obliging and often has gone to much trouble to favor the reporters in their investigations for news in order that the public might have facts in full.

IN RAILWAY CIRCLES.

Travel Will Quiet Down Now For Awhile,

And Officials Will Work at Their Reports—Lake Shore and Other Appointments—Cinders Here and There.

"Passenger business is very dull now that the holidays are over and will remain so until the summer travel begins," said Charley Gates to a Bee this morning, "and it is very well that such is the case, as it is the last of the year and the various departments pitch into their annual reports and settlements as soon as the holiday rush is over. There was more travel this year than ever before on all lines. Fair rates prevailed, but it wasn't that alone, for we have done less business in years when rates were better. The truth is money is more plentiful this year. The crops were big and prosperity seems to prevail in general. With a great many people a holiday trip is a luxury and only indulged in when they have ample means to do so, and such events are held in reserve for the holidays."

Cinders Here and There.

C. L. Clein, of the Wabash city ticket office, has returned from a trip through the west.

A. E. Robins, superintendent of the Hocking Valley road, was in the city on New Year's day.

A rate meeting of the passenger department of the Central Traffic association will be held in Chicago on Tuesday next.

The Hocking Valley office in the St. Clair building, has been newly decorated, both walls and wood work, and the interior presents a most cheerful appearance.

George B. Horner has been appointed division passenger agent of the Louisville & Nashville road at St. Louis. S. F. B. Morse has been appointed to fill a similar position on the same line with headquarters at Cincinnati.

D. H. McCullough, division freight agent of the Cotton Belt line at Little Rock, has resigned, and will be succeeded by Douglass Dallam, who is now traveling freight agent of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis road.

THE CORONER'S VERDICT

In the Lake Shore and F. & P. M. Disaster.

He Finds Cause for Complaint as to Both Company's Employes—The Decision in Full.

Coroner Roulet has reached a verdict on the terrible collision of November 28, between Lake Shore and Flint & Pere Marquette trains, by which 11 people were killed. He finds that both roads were to blame but the greatest burden of this blame is placed on the Lake Shore road for the manner in which they run trains in the Toledo yard. He also finds that the Lake Shore train was stopped and does not believe the testimony of the trainmen who said that the train was running about six miles an hour when the collision occurred. The verdict in full is as follows:

After having heard the evidence and examined the bodies of Susan McCloy, Louis McDonald, Adel McDonald, Hallow L. Vaughn, Ella Mayer, James McQuinn, Maude McKenzie, Pearl McKenzie, Annie Rebecca Nelson, George F. James and Eva L. McKenzie, I do find that the deceased came to their deaths by reason of the combined negligence of both, the Flint & Pere Marquette Railroad company and the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad company for the following reasons:

First, In that the engineer having in charge the control and management of the Flint & Pere Marquette's train, 109, did not properly understand rule 1, special instructions, which governed him in the running of his train within the Toledo yards, and ran the same into and through the tunnel at an excessive rate of speed, which under the circumstances was a violation of this rule, which says clearly and distinctly that engineers should run and have their trains under such control as that they could bring the same to a stop within the limits of their vision. When he left Air Line Junction and approached the tunnel he saw in time to have stopped his train before reaching it that it was filled with steam and smoke and that he could not see beyond nor through it. His duty then under the rule was to have applied the air brake and slowed his train down to such a speed as that it could be stopped instantly on warning of danger.

Second—The negligence of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad company consisted, first, in the rear brakeman of train No. 6 not promptly getting off his train and going back to signal trains, that might be following in the rear, to stop.

The rear brakeman saw Flint & Pere Marquette engine headlight at Air Line Junction when he was entering the tunnel, consequently he had sufficient time to get off his train and signal F. & P. M. train 109 when it came along. No. 6 must have stopped just east of the tunnel, because it would have been impossible for No. 109, F. & P. M. to have struck No. 6 where it did if the testimony of the rear brakeman of No. 6 is to be believed, when he stated that he saw the headlight of this train at Air Line Junction, and the rear end of No. 6 was just entering the tunnel, and No. 6 had only run 300 to 400 feet further when it was struck. So for this reason it would seem to me that No. 6 was stopped when the collision occurred.

Third—The running of passenger trains from Air Line Junction to Toledo station is in too quick succession and in direct violation of Rule 88 of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad company book of rules, which reads as follows: "Passenger trains running in the same direction must keep not less than 10 minutes apart, unless some form of block signal is used."

Fourth—The rate of speed of passenger trains from Air Line Junction to Toledo station, where so many trains and engines are continually passing, is entirely too fast.

Fifth—In the yardmaster allowing No. 56, freight train, to pass down the track from Air Line Junction through Toledo yards on passenger trains' time, and is a violation of Rule 83, which reads as follows: "Trains of inferior class must in all cases be kept out of the way of a train of a superior class."

And lastly—Signals should be displayed at the tunnel in some form to prevent further accidents of this kind.

HOW STUMP STUMPED

The Officials, but They Were On To Him Just the Same.

"The fit dodge is an old one and often resorted to by criminals," remarked Detective Spore to a Bee this morning, and it quite frequently proves successful, as in the Stump case. That man didn't have fits any more than I have now, and that he was sane is manifest by recent developments. With what experience I have had with these ducks, in three hours' time I could have a fit whenever I felt like it, and one that would deceive the ordinary observer.

"I felt satisfied all along that Stump was playing 'possum,'" spoke up Sheriff Stuart, "and was tempted several times to string him up and turn the hose on him, to see if that would cure him. When he was imploring some one to give him a razor that he might kill himself, I told the turnkey to get him a razor, he knew enough not to use it. Another thing I noticed, he never had a fit, and tried to bump his worthless head to pieces unless some of us were near to hold him. When I heard that he had skipped, the only thing that surprised me was that Wilcox's best horse was not missing."

"Yes, it is easy enough to bring on fits," continued Spore, "a very small amount of arsenic will produce the palor; a little soap and camphor gum will supply the froth, then a man must depend on his ingenuity, to effect the rigidness and muscular traction. But then it is only a question of time until that man will be landed high and dry, for he can't keep his finger off of horse flesh."

J. C. PROSSER & CO.

ONE ON BRECKINRIDGE.

He Finds Out Why a Newspaper Correspondent Dislikes Him.

The Washington correspondent of the Atlanta Journal tells this story:

"I have a great admiration for that young man. I have rather exerted myself to cultivate him. I have shown him every courtesy that came in the way. And yet, while he seems warm and enthusiastic to others, to me he is always formal and cold. I really can't understand it."

This is the remark that Congressman W. C. P. Breckinridge made not long since about a well known Washington correspondent.

An hour ago the silver-tongued statesman found out the cause of the newspaper man's indifference to his advances.

Mr. Breckinridge has long been noted as a lawyer and an advocate. Before his congressional career began, he devoted especial attention to criminal law. Many are the men who are now indebted to his skill for being out of the penitentiary. Many are they who have been saved from the gallows by his eloquence.

Now for my story.

This morning, when the statesman and the journalist were walking together down the avenue, the conversation turned upon famous murder trials and acquittals.

Said the newspaper man:

"Do you remember a man named Hickey—a rather noted murderer—whom you once cleared?"

Said Mr. Breckinridge: "I do."

Said the correspondent:

"Hickey was a desperate character—a notorious murderer. He had killed half a dozen men. His last victim was killed without the shadow of cause—a pure case of murder in the first degree. You cleared him. Hickey closed his career by killing himself. Do you remember the name of the man whom you defended him for murdering?"

Mr. Breckinridge: "Yes. His name was ——. By Geoge! that's your name, isn't it?"

The correspondent: "That murdered man was my father."

BURGLARS

Enter Mrs. Wertheim's Store and Make a Good Haul.

Burglars entered the millinery store of Mrs. R. Wertheim, on the corner of Adams and Huron streets, last night, and secured a gold watch and $250 in money. The burglary was committed about 9:30, at which time one of Mrs. Wertheim's sisters, who was in the rooms above the store, which are used as a residence, heard a noise at the door below, but supposed that some customer wanted to get in the store and would go away when they found no one there. Soon after the burglary was discovered and reported to the police.

Burglars also entered the boarding house of Mrs. Cusness, 545 Erie street, near Adams, last night, and secured a clock, a lady's coat and some knives and forks. The clock and coat was afterwards discovered in the alley back of Grassgreen's saloon on Legrange street.

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. A Boston lady, whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I had taken Hood's Sarsaparilla, knew what it was, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other. When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

100 Doses One Dollar

NOW ANSWER THIS.

A Move That Forever Settles the Charge That the $5 Offer Concealed a Trick or Scheme.

It Is Practically Renewed for the Rest of the Winter—A Physician's Circular Letter and How Dr. Copeland and Associates Reply to It—They Are Permanently Located in Toledo—They Are Here to Stay.

The five-dollar rate which Dr. Copeland and associates introduced for a stated period created a genuine surprise, not only among doctors and druggists, but among newspaper readers generally. It was such a radical departure from the big fees usually charged by persons claiming to be specialists that at first it could hardly be understood by the public. Of course the rate was not exceedingly profitable to the physicians themselves, and in some cases, especially those of patients out of the city, needing special preparations or apparatus to supply the place of office treatment, it entailed a positive loss. In spite of this, however, Dr. Copeland and associates lived vigorously up to the terms of their offer and in no case was a patient charged more than $5 a month for medicines and treatment during the period the offer covered.

Envious and less successful doctors looked on at first with incredulity.

"There is some trick about it," they said. "They are going to get more money some way. They cannot treat patients and furnish medicines at $5 a month."

But in spite of this warning, intelligent newspaper readers who had carefully watched the career of Dr. Copeland and his associates during the time that they have practiced medicine in Toledo, knew that there was no trick about it. They knew that Dr. Copeland and associates religiously kept their promises to the public, and the offer met with a cordial and almost overwhelming response. Dr. Copeland and associates did what their rivals said could not be done. They did it, not only for one month, but for three consecutive months. Their incredulity gave way to anger. Envious doctors realized that a telling blow had been struck at the unreasonable system of heavy fees and expensive prescriptions. After that a remark frequently heard by discomfitted physicians was:

"Oh, true; they are simply doing that to get a crowd of people. After they get all the patients they want they will raise their rates and make a lot of money."

One physician, from another city, envious of the success of Dr. Copeland and his associates, went so far as to embody this remark in a circular letter (written on a hektograph) which he mailed to all the names he could get.

Well, we are prepared to show the weakness of this method of attack just as clearly as we have shown the weakness of other attacks from a similar source. We are going to renew that offer to all patients who can come to the office for treatment or medicines—in fact, for all cases wherein the rate does not entail a positive loss to us. Out-of-town patients will be charged only, in addition to this rate, the actual wholesale cost of whatever special preparations or appliances they may need. To local patients we will maintain the rate of $5 a month for all medicines and treatment for the remainder of the winter months, January and February. We believe this thoroughly demonstrates what we have been attempting to show, that patients can be skillfully, thoroughly and successfully treated at one-fourth, yes, one-tenth the cost charged by many who claim to be specialists.

They Are Permanently Located in Toledo.

There is one other remark that has been made which calls for a very direct and very forcible answer—the reduction of the rate to $5 a month up to a specified time gave rise to a remark from a certain source, something like this:

"Oh! they are going to take in all the money they can up to that date, then close up their office and leave the town."

Let it be clearly and distinctly stated that Dr. Copeland and associates never closed an office, their location here is permanent, their leases and contracts are for a term of years, they are here to stay and less successful physicians need not delude themselves with the hope that they are going to leave the city; they are permanently located in Toledo and will permanently give skillful, thorough and scientific treatment to all at low and uniform rates. Let there be no misunderstanding about this.

"I had several hemorrhages, and this, together with the constant violent pains in my chest drove me to think I had consumption. After treating but a short time I have gained in flesh and strength. All my troublesome symptoms have disappeared. I feel like working; in fact I never felt better than I do now. I freely recommend Dr. Copeland and associates, and my friends can testify to the wonderful and rapid improvement which I have made," says Mr. N. R. Dull, of 2215 Lorlie street.

"My head was racked with pains. My nostrils would stop up constantly. The mucus would drop into my throat, causing me to hawk and spit continually. My throat became raw and sore. I felt tired in the morning upon arising. My limbs pained me. I had both dull and sharp pains in the chest. My appetite was very poor. Nothing seemed to nourish me. I grew despondent and was a physical wreck. I called on Dr. Copeland and associates and took their treatment. My troubles have disappeared, owing to the skillful treatment I received of these physicians." This from C. E. McLean, 935 Indiana avenue.

"Eight months ago I had to quit work, because I could get no sleep—I would cough continually during the night, and had begun to think that my friends were really right; I would not be long for this world. Although in this terrible condition, it was hard to give up, and while reading the paper one day I was attracted by the wonderful cures of Dr. Copeland and associates, and I concluded to consult them. I took their treatment and they have made a new man of me," says Mr. James Young, 1325 Nevada street.

"My head and nose were constantly stopped up and I could scarcely breathe, except through my mouth. My throat was always sore and my mouth dry and parched. I had pains in the head and my eyes became very dim; ringing noises in the ears, and whenever I stooped and would suddenly raise up I would become so dizzy that I would have to hold to something for support. My symptoms have all disappeared and, although 78 years of age, I feel young again, and I cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Copeland and associates." This statement is made by John R. Taylor, Sylvania, Ohio.

Their Credentials.

As has been said, Dr. W. H. Copeland is a graduate of Bellevue Hospital Medical College, of the City of New York, was president of his class in that famous institution and after thorough hospital training and experience devoted his time and attention to the special lines of practice noted below. Years of experience in their special lines, preceded by extensive hospital work, has fitted Dr. Copeland and his associates in a notable degree for the practice of their profession.

Dr. Copeland and associates are permanently located in this city. Their lease and contracts are for a term of years.

Dr. Copeland and associates treat successfully all curable cases at the Copeland Medical Institute, 706 Madison St. Office hours, 9 to 11 a. m., 2 to 5 p. m. and 6 to 8 p. m. Sundays, 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. Specialties—Catarrh and all diseases of the eye, ear, throat and lungs, chronic diseases.

CURRENT TOPICS.

Tolstoi may be an adept at the study of human character, but he does not seem, just the same, to have a very recent edition of political economy. The Russian government has been considering the plan of having the peasants, who are now suffering from starvation, employed on certain needed branches of railroad which it is proposed to build. Tolstoi, however, is opposed to this, as he says the completion of such roads would deprive the peasants of their only occupation in winter, when field work being impossible, by acting as carriers, they earn sufficient to procure food for themselves and their horses. The introduction of machinery and the development of a country in their initial stages always work hardship until the laborers have adjusted themselves to the new conditions, but in the end, and an immediate end it usually is, too, both the nation and the working people are benefited.

There is an interesting question at issue in the recent cabinet overturn in the Province of Quebec, and that is whether the lieutenant-governor is to exercise his powers of dictator. The dismissal of the cabinet is a prerogative that the lieutenant-governors for the past years have discreetly allowed to rest undisturbed. It is a prerogative, too, that can be enforced only with the greatest care and good judgment. Furthermore, it is a power that can be used in an arbitrary and autocratic fashion and practically enable the governor to override every wish of the people. If the lieutenant-governor can dismiss cabinets at will, there is nothing to prevent him from constantly shifting them until he gets one to his own liking or his own political views. Leutenant-Governor Anger's hasty action may in the end prove a good thing for the province, as it may result in a definite understanding on certain questions of prerogative.

Gov. Hill of New York writes as follows in the North American Review for January on the question, "In Whom Should the Pardoning Power be Vested?" "In whom the power of pardon should be vested is a question upon which there is much difference of opinion. The framers of the federal constitution and of most of our state constitutions came to the conclusion, after much discussion and deliberation, that the prerogative properly belonged to the chief executive. There has been a tendency of late years towards the establishment of a council or board in which should be reposed at least some advisory functions pertaining to pardons. It has been strongly urged that the power is a judicial function, and that its lodgment in the executive or in the legislature is an anomaly in our institutions. It has also been argued that the power is too important a one to be reposed in a single official, especially a chief executive who is usually overburdened with administrative duties, and who must find it impossible to devote the necessary time for the proper consideration of the numerous cases which are constantly before him. On the other hand, it is said that there ought not to be a division of responsibility in such matters. It is suggested that, while the responsibility is fearful to contemplate, its very magnitude induces scrupulousness and caution. It is contended that a tribunal of four men can better evade, shift and shirk responsibility than can one official, and that the latter is less likely to be moved by extraneous influences than is a council or board. Hamilton, who was well versed in the science of government, reached the conclusion that 'one man appears to be a more eligible dispenser of the mercy of the government than a body of men.' The force of that conclusion is much augmented if it be conceded that the one man is conscientious, independent and resolute.

"It must be admitted that there have been some scandals connected with the discharge of this power by councils or boards in certain states, while there has been no serious allegations that the power has ever been abused by an executive. Whether favoritism, prejudice and sympathy in the execution of this high function can better be avoided by a body of officials than by a single official is a question not free from difficulty, and there are plausible, if not reasonably satisfactory, arguments on both sides. It is probably true that the trend of public opinion is against the "one-man power." The magazine contributors and many modern law-writers join in the opposition. It is very likely the popular side.

"But after an experience of seven years in the administration of this great trust, I feel constrained to say that it is my deliberate conviction that our fathers were wise when they provided that the pardoning power should be lodged in the chief executive alone, and, in my opinion, it ought not to be transferred."

Here are some showings of school gains in the south, according to the census bulletin on education: Alabama, with a gain of nearly 20 in population, shows a gain in school enrollment of 61 per cent; Arkansas a gain of 106 per cent, against 40 per cent gain in population; Florida 110 per cent, against 45; Georgia 44 per cent, against 19; Kentucky 39 per cent, against 12; Louisiana 53, against 19; North Carolina 27 against 15; South Carolina 51, against 15; Tennessee 56, against 14; Texas 133, against 40; Virginia 55, against 9. The meaning of this is that the old prejudice against schooling, which was one of the concomitants of slavery, has died out, and that the southern people have waked up to the necessity of promoting education. The meaning of that is that the ignorant white and the ignorant negro will disappear in the next generation, and that citizens at the south will divide on questions as citizens do at the north. It is gratifying to observe that in some of the states the colored race are being educated nearly as religiously as the white race. In Georgia, for instance, there are 175,000 colored pupils to 209,339 white and in Alabama there are 116,155 colored pupils to 186,794 white pupils.

Sir William Thompson has just made a very important announcement to the royal society. It is nothing less than the information that the axis of the earth is altering its direction. Suspicion was first aroused by the discovery that Berlin was further north than it had previously been supposed to be; and an expedition was accordingly sent to Honolulu to find if the Sandwich Islands had also changed their position. The expedition found that Honolulu had moved just as far south as Berlin had moved north, and the conclusion is irresistible that the axis of the earth is changing its angle to the eclipic. If this continues, Europe will be brought so near the pole that it will be buried under hundreds of feet of ice; while North America, especially the western parts thereof, will become semi-tropical.

ASHER COOK IS DEAD.

A Well-Known Man Crosses the River Styx.

One of the Pioneers of the Maumee Valley.

A Lawyer of Much Prominence and a Man Respected by All Who Knew Him in Daily Life.

Perrysburg, Jan. 2.—(Special)—Asher Cook, born near Mansfield, Ohio, May 3, 1823, died at his home in Perrysburg last night. He came to Perrysburg in 1827, as a poor boy, worked days, studied nights and obtained an education. He studied law with Willard Way. Was admitted to the bar in 1849, elected prosecuting attorney in 1850, probate judge in 1853. He was a member of the Ohio constitutional convention in 1873, and served his constituents with honor in all positions wherein placed.

He married Miss Amanda Hall, who died in 1850. He then went to Europe and studied in Heidelberg university and on his return home married Miss Sophia A. Hitchcock, who survives him.

He traveled extensively, going abroad with his wife in 1879, visiting Great Britain and the continent. Again in 1883 they visited Britain, the continent, Egypt, Palestine, paying much attention to Jerusalem and ancient land marks of Masonry, he being an ardent member of the fraternity.

As a lawyer Chief Justice Waite pronounced him one of the best in the Maumee valley. He amassed a modest fortune, lived elegantly in a palatial residence, was generous to the needy, and Perrysburg deeply feels the death of her most accomplished and worthy citizen. The funeral will be held Tuesday at 2 o'clock at his late residence.

GREEN WAS NOT ORDAINED.

Presiding Elder John Revels called at the Bee office this morning and requested the insertion of the following card relative to Green, arrested this week:

Toledo, O., Jan. 2, 1892.

I saw in the publication of your paper December 31 that Green, the man that was arrested Wednesday, you stated that he was ordained at the little tin church last Sunday. But there has been no men ordained there since May 10, 1891, and that was Elder Gaines, of Toledo, and Elder Snowden, of Chicago. I hope you will correct it, and take the blame off the little church, for she has enough to carry. Respectfully yours,

ELDER JOHN REVELS.

AFTER ANOTHER SAGE.

Assaulted at the Door of His Residence.

Two Hard Looking Customers Call Him Out of the House and Make an Attack on Him.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Dean Sage, the millionaire lumber merchant, had an experience last night somewhat similar to that of Russell Sage.

Two rough looking men called at his residence and demanded an audience with him. They were refused admittance, but declared that they would not leave until they saw him.

Mr. Sage went to the door, when the men became abusive and dragged him out of doors and assaulted him. A call was sent to police headquarters and the men fled. One of them was subsequently captured and gave the name of Thomas Martin. He would say nothing about his visit.

It is unfortunate that a campaign for Foraker always signifies dirty politics. The stream cannot rise higher than its source.

The Hamilton county delegation is no longer solid for Foraker. Representative Dicks has declared for Sherman, and others may follow.

And still it goes unexplained how the American manufacturer can compete with the product of "pauper labor" in other countries when it takes a 60 per cent. tariff to protect him in his own.

Very much of the senatorial sentiment in hotel lobbies in Columbus is manufactured. The claquers and howlers on both sides are furnished with the wherewithal to get hilariously enthusiastic and whoopingly sanguine.

It is rumored that the Chilean president will ask to have the difficulties between that country and our own submitted to arbitration. If such a proposition is made, it will be a golden opportunity for the peace societies to exert their influence upon our jingo administration.

Do not be misled by the name of the new senator from Kansas. "Bishop" is a name simply and not a title. Mr. Perkins is Ohio born, and was defeated for congress a year ago by the farmers' alliance. He has been congressman, probate judge and editor of a newspaper. Now through the death of Mr. Plumb he comes into the most coveted place of all.

Trust Foraker to make a break whenever he addresses a crowd. To a howling squad of men in Columbus last night he bitterly inveigled against office holders who are assisting Sherman, and alluded to the President of the United States as "Grandfather's hat." If that speech does not cost him a few votes in the caucus then the administration is indeed weak and powerless.

If Mr. Foraker is correctly reported by the republican press in his speech at republican headquarters in Columbus last night, he said, "Senator Sherman is a grand man, in all that the term implies," which is rather a slap at the organs that have been frantically calling him a boodler, a schemer, a political trickster, a boss by virtue of the offices he controls, a traitor to party, and worse things than democrats ever thought of.

Puck and Judge have been dropped from the list of periodicals in the Boston public library. Certain of the library board are of opinion that these papers are "only comic" and have no educational value, an opinion that will not be accepted by the majority of people, who can understand that satire and humor are sharp teachers, while one pointed caricature can expose a humbug as dozens of discourses by Boston wiseacres cannot.

The high-tax organs are explaining about the reduction of wages at the Carnegie mills. This reduction is attributed to the "sliding scale" adopted, by which the rate of wages depends upon the selling price of goods. One odd thing about this "scale" is it never slides upwards for the employes. The Boston Journal warns the tariff reformers that they must not attempt to clinch any argument by this example of the "misfortune of the Carnegie workmen." Why should any such misfortune overtake them under a tariff law framed avowedly for their benefit and under whose workings their employer commands the world by virtue of his millions?

The enthusiasm of the administration for "patronizing home industry" is shown by the number of "French toilettes" worn by the wives of government officers at the New Year's reception at the President's mansion. The shoddy-filled garments that high tariff puts on the market are all for "the children of the Poor," and it is their tribute which must go to the upbuilding of the businesses which make it possible for "the children of the Rich" to buy their costumes abroad where they cost less and "style" more. It is no wonder the selfish wealth of the country battles for laws to perpetuate these "good times."

Gov. Hill's term of office expired with the year 1891. Seven eventful years mark his incumbency of the office. As little known outside of his own immediate home as Grover Cleveland when the two were selected to lead the democracy as candidates for governor and lieutenant-governor, he has so impressed his personality upon his state and country that he is, more than any other man, almost as well-known to the whole republic now as is Mr. Cleveland. Some men call David B. Hill a machine politician. As true as the needle to the pole is his democracy, and every public act for seven years has has advanced the cause of his party. Possessed of indomitable courage, coupled with a keen knowledge of public questions he has so guided the destines of his state party as to make New York wholly democratic. For the first time in twenty years the democrats have both branches of the legislature and the executive. Hereafter the democrats will have two United States senators, and all the vast patronage of the state goes to worthy working democrats. To Gov. Hill very much credit must be given for all this success. He is a great democrat. Leaving the office of governor to assume the duties of United States senator further service to his party may be expected from him. That man reads not rightly the immediate future of politics who belittles the possibilities in store for this tried leader of the democracy of the Empire State.

A NEW POINT OF VIEW.

Two new prophets have arisen to prophesy concerning the industrial problem, and their views, apparently arrived at without interchange of thought between the two, are curiously alike and startlingly new to the rest of mankind. Both concur in the very generally held opinion that a change in our industrial system is impending, but instead of looking for further consolidation of interests and merging of corporations into syndicates, as heretofore the business of individuals has been merged in corporations, both are of opinion that the return to the day of small industries is at hand.

One advocate of this theory is Mr. Cook Taylor, an English inspector of factories, who has recently published a volume on "The Modern Factory System." Mr. Taylor reviews the industries of the last century, and shows how the English spinners and weavers were first taken from their homes and hived as hands in factories when the uses of steam and its application to ever improving machinery came to be the great factors in manufacturing. He then states his belief that we are about to discover and apply another power, which can be distributed with economy to workingmen's homes. This would naturally result in the break-up of the factory system.

Dr. Albrecht, a German statistician, is the other authority for this possibility of change, and it seems has something more than conjecture to go upon. In Germany, where science is always given free scope because philosophic minds are ready to test any formula offered, the "power" is already being tested. Dr. Albrecht quotes from the statements of factory inspectors to the effect that the introduction of small, cheap motors has largely increased the number of small shops throughout the German empire. He also predicts that "with the improvement of electric motors and the cheapening of electricity there will be a great increase of small shops, and possibly a return to the day of small industries."

These speculations are worthy of at least passing mention, for political as well as economic changes are foreshadowed in them. The governmentalists, and they are now active in their propaganda in every nation, have been basing their strongest plea for governmental regulation or ownership of industries upon the present tendency of industries toward upbuilding giant concerns which through their money and control of vast armies of employes exercise power that cannot be safely vested except in the people themselves through their representatives. This reasoning is open to argument at many points and is vigorously opposed, but what becomes of the very groundwork of the socialists' theory if the decentralization of industries becomes possible?

It is too early to seriously consider the suppositions advanced by Mr. Taylor and Dr. Albrecht, but it is worth while to learn that among the possibilities of that strange, new servant of mankind, the electric fluid, is the possibility that it may some day deliver us at once from the domination of great corporations on the one hand, and from the threatened incubus of state socialism on the other.

SOCIAL CHRISTIANITY.

Slowly but surely the church is taking hold of the work of redeeming this world, and giving that work first place. "Social Christianity," as some churchmen call it, or "Christian Socialism," as others prefer to name it, has less of "otherworldliness" for its direct object than any other phase of church work, but in the end may be found to have fitted men for a better world along with making this a better world for men. In the last week of the old year the Andover House association met in the chapel of Trinity church, Boston, and the principles on which the association is to be conducted were there announced by Prof. Tucker, of Andover, as "two in number, and very simple," namely:

1. Resident work, and he didn't know whether the emphasis should be on "resident" or on "work."

2. To make Christianity mean to as many persons as possible all that it means to us—better lives, more comfortable homes, education and refinement, etc.

The objects of the association are:

To establish and maintain a house in Boston as a residence for seminary and college graduates and others engaged in work for the social and moral elevation of people in this vicinity.

To bring into friendly and helpful relations with one another the people of the neighborhood in which the house is situated.

To co-operate with churches, with charitable and labor organizations and with other agencies acting for the improvement of social conditions.

To serve as a medium between the different social elements of the city for bringing about a more intelligent and systematic understanding of their mutual obligations.

To encourage efforts in other communities which may be similar in any degree, and to advance in general the cause of social Christianity.

A house has been taken for the work, which will be supported by interested persons. It will be under one superintendent chosen by the association, and the residents must be approved by a council before they are admitted. They must be qualified for the work by previous training and must pledge themselves to the work for not less than six months of actual and active service.

For a long time sincere Christians have felt and mourned the growing indifference of the people to the church. It will be interesting to note the work of the association and to see whether taking the church to those who do not come to the church will bring about the desired end. The hope of all good people is that it may.

The Toledo Bee's New Home.

The prosperity of the Toledo Bee is very clearly demonstrated by its latest move. A handsome new "hive" is now its home, and, if one may judge by the picture, the accommodations of editors, reporters and business agents are bordering on the luxurious. The Bee is to be congratulated on the enterprise which has, through well-earned success, made such an establishment possible.—Boston Journal.

A Difference With the Lockes.

Foraker's next colleague in the United States senate will not be a democrat. The six-year cycle of democratic success in Ohio will be broken.—Toledo Blade.

Don't be an ass. Foraker's securing his nomination for a third term, by the use of state patronage, and his running for a third term gave to Ohio Campbell, a democratic legislature and Senator Brice. —Tiffin Tribune.

Largest and Best in the State.

The Toledo Bee issued a 24-page edition to celebrate its location in its handsome new building. The Bee is the largest and best evening newspaper in the state, with an office equipped with typesetting machines, perfecting presses, stereotyping department, and everything usually connected with a first-class modern city paper.—Bellaire Democrat.

That's What's the Matter With Him.

President Harrison says that Commissioner Raum is a diligent man. That is exactly what the people of the United States are complaining about. He is a little too diligent in promoting the interests of himself and friends at the expense of the government whose interests he is paid to guard.—New Delta.

The Third Party.

"My wife's a democrat," he said, "and I'm a republican, and now we've got a third party at our house."

"Indeed?"

"Yes—a boy born last night."

"What is he—republican or democrat?"

"I guess he's a mugwump, for he doesn't seem to know much."—New York Democrat.

An Ohio Speaker Sized Up.

J. Warren Keifer said to a Chicago reporter that Speaker Crisp would have trouble in handling the big democratic majority in the house. J. Warren Keifer was probably the worst speaker that ever sat in the chair, and his prophecies are especially valuable as indications of what cannot possibly come to pass.—Chicago Herald.

The Bee Up to the Times.

The Toledo Bee celebrated its advent in a home of its own with a mammoth number describing the new building. The Bee is one of the best and most prosperous papers in the state, and is up to the times in news, vigor and worth.—Delaware Herald.

A LEADER AT LAST.

To the Editor:—The gallant democracy, rejoicing in victory, never discouraged by defeat, has fought on and fought ever practically without a leader for lo! these many years.

I will do no injustice to Cleveland. He did many things wonderfully well. He settled once and for good that the vast business of the country is to be conducted on business principles, and not to be left like a captured city to loot and plunder. He settled in the public mind that democratic supremacy did not mean recklessness and confusion.

But he was no leader.

In the contest resulting in his defeat, after the line of battle had been formed and the bugles sounded, he attempted to form a new line, undoubtedly the true one, which, if planned a year before, would have led to certain victory.

In the blind attempt to relieve the country from the horrible financial confusion, worse confounded in which the republican party had involved it, he had no word to say until nearly the whole party, under chance guidance, but led by a noble desire to relieve the masses of the people, had declared for free coinage of silver, when his voice was heard from the rear ordering a halt and commanding a retreat.

What the party has needed was a leader who could plan a campaign while the armies were in camp, so that when the line of battle was formed every man's shoulder would touch his comrade's, and every leader would know his place. Another thing he must know is that we are to attack an intrenched camp and not an enemy in the open field.

No plan of attack can in such cases succeed unless the intrenchments are turned, or heavy forces are dashed upon their weakest points.

But to drop figures, no man's theories formed into a general tariff bill can combine the public discontent with the McKinley law, while bills aimed at its weakest points and wickedest outrages will leave it ridiculed and ridiculous.

Free coinage of silver without equalizing the coins would only add to the present confusion, but free coinage of both gold and silver when their value is once equalized would be an unmixed blessing.

Outside of these two vital matters the democratic party has only to check the wanton waste of the billion dollar congress.

In his speech Thursday night on taking leave of the office in which he had finally rescued his great commonwealth from the grasp of the worst gang that unfortunate state has ever known, the Tweed gang perhaps, excepted, Gov. Hill outlined a democratic campaign which if followed will lead to certain victory for the party and prosperity for the country.

Hear him on the financial question on which the party has been absolutely without leadership:

"New York will not follow the lead of Nevada. New York democrats care nothing for the republican silver senators and their protected commodity. New York democrats will never support any federal money legislation save that which promotes the nation's return to the best money ever known to mankind, namely, 'gold and silver the only legal tender,' as Tilden's platform said in 1874, and these united at a fixed ratio in free bimetallic coinage with paper currency, which is a deposit certificate of either coin."

Add one single proposition that this equalization of the coins is to be effected, as it always has been done, and last under the lead of Jackson and Benton and with nearly the unanimous concurrence of all the great men in the congress of 1834 by reducing the higher to the value of the lower, and we have in his speech a complete program for the great contest of 1892. H. T. NILES.

Toledo, Jan. 2, 1892.

JAMES COOPER DEAD.

Philadelphia, Jan. 2.—James Cooper, proprietor of the Adam Forepaugh shows, died at his residence in this city yesterday morning of inflammation of the stomach. He was born in Philadelphia Nov. 4, 1832.

Corn is King.

Dresden is getting ahead of Berlin in its zeal for corn bread. Bakers in the former city are serving a pound corn loaf, which is finding a great popularity at the price of three cents. We fear that the missionary spirit of Minister Phelps is flagging.—New York Telegram.

No One Overlooked.

Everybody got something this Christmas. Those who didn't get anything else, got the grip.—Reading Telegram.

So He Will.

The wise congressman will let the Nicaragua canal job severely alone.—Courier-Journal.

THE BRIBERY TOPIC.

Griffin's grief and effort to clear himself of the statement that he had been offered $5,000 to desert Foraker, form one of the weakest efforts at holding out the olive branch ever witnessed.—Lima Times.

Walter Brown, of Toledo, says Representative Griffin of Lucas told him in the presence of witnesses that he—Griffin—had been offered $5,000 to vote for Sherman. Griffin denies it in a half hearted way, but Brown asserts that he can prove his statements.—Bryan Democrat.

Let it be recorded that the first charge of bribery in the present senatorial contest came from a republican source. A republican charging a republican with attempted bribery in the interests of another republican is a sorry sight so early in the senatorial campaign.—Auglaize County Democrat.

Representative Griffin, of Toledo, claimed he had been offered $5,000 to vote for Sherman for senator. Mr. Griffin duly denied making the statement but was brought face to face with a couple of stiff-backed affidavits from two good reliable citizens and is now busy trying to pull the hole in after him. Verily, things are growing interesting in the republican camp.—Delphos Herald.

One republican legislator, Griffin, of Toledo, claims to have been offered $5,000 to vote for Sherman for senator. Other bribery insinuations and rumors are flying promiscuously about. It is no surprise that the republicans of Ohio should be found in the vote buying business but it seems very incredible that any one of them who has been offered $5,000 should be refusing the cash and making the matter public. The so-called exposure of the business makes Griffin's alleged tempting very improbable.—Ottawa County News.

The fight between Foraker and Sherman for the United States senatorship, has assumed a desperate shape. It is now charged that bribery has been resorted to by Sherman. It is reported that Representative Griffin, of Toledo, was offered $5,000 to support Sherman. Griffin has denied the report, but Walter Brown, a business man of Toledo, affirms that Griffin told him in the presence of a third party that the bribe had been offered. The Ohio senatorship will leave the republican party of Ohio in a hopelessly divided state. It is a fierce war between the old politicians and office-holders of Ohio, in favor of Sherman and the young men of the party who favor Foraker. We now believe that Foraker will win.—Tiffin News

Singular what schemes men will resort to to get office. It is now charged by the Foraker backers that Representative Griffin, of Toledo, had been approached by a Sherman adherent and offered $5,000 if in the choice for senator he would vote for Sherman. The Forakerites started in to make much of this, but were immediately called down because the charge was reacting. Griffin himself denies that he had made a statement to that effect and two reputable men under oath say he told them so. It seems to us that if the people would take more general interest in matters political and forever relegate the political shysters of all parties to the rear, this country might return to the honest, good, old style politics of auld lang sine.—Fostoria Democrat.

MENTIONED ON THE STREETS

That politicians are laying plans for the spring campaign.

That there will be a lull in the matrimonial market for awhile.

That the factory managers are looking for cheaper fuel than oil or coal.

That the new year does not open auspiciously for the local republicans.

That another war has broken out between the street railroad companies.

That the Toledo Cadets will outshine all military organizations in the inaugural parade.

That the man who wrote it '91 need not kick himself. He has plenty of sympathizers.

That business men are awaiting the balancing of ledgers with some anxiety and interest.

That Sheriff Stuart will begin his new term next Monday, and will hereafter draw a salary.

That billiard playing was never so popular in the public halls and club rooms as it is this winter.

That many well-located additions will be thrown on the real estate market in the early spring.

That the people are in condition to entertain Prof. Foster's five storms scheduled for January.

That leap year promises to make several bashful young men in the produce exchange building happy.

That great preparations are being made for the entertainment under the auspices of the Day Nursery Circle.

That a pull all together will give the city a record next year of which every Toledoan can well feel proud.

That trade dollars are now very scarce; they are being melted as fast as Uncle Sam can get possession of them.

That it would not be a bad idea to have Toledo sandwiched into the bill which is to give Columbus a wheel-tax.

That the infirmary officials are not free from just criticism for their carelessness in the Streicher and Stump cases.

That the soft weather has been felt most by the clothing merchants, who are wishing for a stiff spell, even a blizzard.

That one of the contending factions in the senatorial fight will go home by way of back streets when the final settlement is reached.

That eligible young ladies propose to take advantage of the leap year, and retire from the prospective shades of old maidenhood.

That the first scrimmage in the senatorial agony will be over to-night, and that much crow will be served for breakfast Sunday morning.

That Representative Flickinger remains like adamant among the faithful Shermanites in Columbus, and Jake Romeis grits his teeth.

That Mayor Emmick, with his manager, Judge Sala, dropped in on the Columbus bear fight for a time, but the situation remains unsolved.

That Bill Vena will be home to-night from Columbus to tell his colored brethren how ungrateful are Republican legislators. 'Twas ever thus.

That the mayor's idea of a show-down by the gas trustees is indorsed by the people generally, though the board may think otherwise. Turn on the light.

That it would be wise to replace the so-called asphalt sidewalk about the city which were laid before the present substantial asphalt came into use.

That the country is now saved; Doc Smith has gone to Columbus to take Griffin out of the hole into which he was dropped by the Brown-Hughes affidavit.

That some of the contestants for the hospital ladies' prize have lengthy lists of words figured out, and will cause close examination to discover some of the combinations.

That Father Hannin and Father McCarthy have undertaken big jobs in the erection of their new churches, but both have the requisite force to carry their plans to a successful conclusion.

That it is a mistake to suppose that a joint session of the council will convene in two weeks from the last meeting. Sessions are only held when the aldermen and five councilmen sign a call for the same.

That the conduct of representatives from Northwestern Ohio in voting against a candidate from their section for speaker is one of the freaks in politics which sometimes appear, and for which a good reason cannot be given.

That in the event of Laylin's election as speaker, Toledo's burly statesman, Charley Griffin, will have the pleasure of seeing brother Flickinger occupying a front seat in the committee wagon, while Charles will hang on to it.

Cut and Dried.

Governor Humphrey announces that he will give everybody a hearing, but in the final disposition of the senatorial appointment "I shall do as I please." Which means, perhaps, that the whole matter is now cut and dried—a probably correct view of the situation.—Kansas City Star.

Albany's Welcome.

With all due deference to the distinguished bachelors for whom the executive mansion has been an abiding place, Albany especially welcomes the restoration of woman's presence to make the mansion truly a home. Welcome to Gov. and Mrs. Flower.—Albany Argus.

What It Needs Most.

Mr. Clarkson, who is good authority, thinks that an infusion of invigorating intelligence is needed to save the republican party. No doubt this is true, but an infusion of invigorating morality is needed still more.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

King Milan, it is said, is about to proceed to Persia to organize the shah's cavalry, of which he will be the general-in-chief.

Mrs. Rider Haggard, the wife of the famous writer, is very clever at golf, taking prizes continuously in contests of the game.

Sir Edwin Arnold has agreed to write a poem for the world's fair opening and to serve on two committees connected with the management.

Mr. McDermott, nephew of the late Mr. Parnell, who acquired fame by horsewhipping Timothy Healy, is said to be the best waltzer in Dublin society.

An oil painting owned in Philadelphia shows, it is claimed, that the first man to wear russet shoes in America was Christopher Columbus; that in fact he landed in them.

The Countess d'Eu, Dom Pedro's daughter, is credited with having a voice of magnificent range and wonderful power and of being so skilled in its use as to make her a rival of the leading vocalists upon the stage.

THE TREMBLY ESTATE

In the Courts at Oakland, Cal.—Toledo Property Mixed Up.

A special dispatch from Oakland, Cal., gives the following particulars of a suit just entered there in relation to parties, most of whom are well-known in Toledo, and the outcome of which will be watched with great interest:

To-day a very sensational document was filed in the contest of Frances Louella Trembly Spencer of the will of her father, the late Dr. J. B. Trembly. The will was admitted to probate December 29, 1890. It gave his daughter and son, Frederick J. Trembly, a piece of property each in Toledo, O., and the rest of his estate to his second wife, Mrs. Sarah Leroy Trembly, for life, the estate then to be divided equally among his heirs at law. The petition recites that the will was executed while deceased was under the influence and control of Mrs. Leroy Trembly and is not valid. The petition also writes that in 1870 Dr. Trembly and his first wife, Sarah Trembly, and his two children, were living happily in Toledo; that he there met Miss Sarah Leroy, and after bestowing upon her many favors and attentions took a six week's trip into New York state with her and that they then left for California together. In February, 1875, the deceased sued Mrs. Sarah Trembly, of Toledo, for divorce in the Third District Court, upon the ground of her alleged desertion, and obtained a decree on September 27, 1875. On October 10, 1875, deceased and Miss Leroy were married at San Jose. Mrs. Spencer states that her mother and father had lived happily together for twenty years until he deserted her in 1874 for Miss Leroy; that he had accumulated large propery in Toledo, but that she was allowed only an income of one house and $200. The daughter charges Mrs. Leroy Trembly with securing, by undue influence, forty shares of stock of the Merchants National bank of Toledo from Dr. Trembly, also that the doctor had on deposit in the Union bank $20,000, but that through her undue influence Mrs. Leroy Trembly caused him to change it so that she could draw upon the account, and that she drew $11,309 at one time and $4,588 at another, and further that she failed to account for the money in an inventory of the estate and concealed the fact of its withdrawal. Mrs. Sarah Trembly is now dead.

HARRISON'S PARTY.

A Grand Time at the Pythian Castle New Year's Eve.

One of the most delightful events of the season was the reception given by Harrison lodge, Knights of Pythias, on New Year's eve. Pythian castle was fairly ablaze with light that seemed to bid the guests welcome on their way.

The committee worked most zealously for weeks, and spared no pains or expense to outdo all past events of the kind, and that they succeeded far beyond expectations was the unanimous verdict of all who were so fortunate as to be present.

The guests began to arrive early in the evening, and the halls were thronged with new arrivals until a late hour.

The pleasures of the evening were introduced by an interesting entertainment given in the lodge room. The program consisted of musical selections, both vocal and instrumental, recitations, comical character impersonations and humorous sketches, all of which was thoroughly appreciated by those present.

At the conclusion of the last number of this program the grand march was announced, and those who desired to "trip a step" repaired to the ball room. Here 150 couples were soon whirling to the measure of the sweet music, a happy light hearted throng.

The ladies, as if by prearrangement to excel in the matter of costume, were dressed to perfection.

The New Year was well on its journey before the party broke up, and then it was with regret that the hours were so fleet of foot.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES.

Their Meetings Begin Again Next Week—Announcements.

THE LAST INVOCATION.

At last, tenderly,
From the walls of the powerful fortress'd house,
From the clasp of the knitted locks, from the keep of the well-closed doors,
Let me be wafted.

Let me glide noiselessly forth,
With the key of Softness unlock the locks—with a whisper,
Set ope the doors O soul.

Tenderly—be not impatient,
(Strong is your hold O mortal flesh,
Strong is your hold, O love.)
—Walt Whitman.

The tax is no longer levied.

FIVE STORMS THIS MONTH

The Last Will Be the Most Severe of All,

The Real Winter Will Soon Arrive.

People Who Have Made Up Their Minds That This Fourth of July Weather Was to Continue May Get Badly Left.

(Copyrighted, 1892, by W. T. Foster.)

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 2.—My last letter gave forecasts of the storm wave due to cross the continent from January 1 to 6.

We may now expect some genuine winter weather. We had the early winter in October and November. The Missouri river was frozen over early in November as far south as St. Joseph. We have had the warm weather in the last half of December as predicted and now a relapse into very much colder weather is due.

As to the weather events January will be a notable month. The storms will continue to increase in force from first to last, and the last storm will be the most severe of all the five storm waves due to cross the continent this month. The first storm wave of the month, however, is expected to be quite severe on the Atlantic coast about the 6th.

The next storm wave will be due to reach the Pacific coast about January 6th, cross the Rocky mountains by the close of the 8th, the great central valleys from the 9th to 11th, and reach the Atlantic coast about the 12th. It should be borne in mind that in these calculations reference is had to the front of the storm center or about the isobaric line 30, unless special mention is made of some other part of the storm. This storm wave will move on a curved line south of the path of the one that precedes it, and will probably affect the weather of the whole country. The path of its center will not be far from a line extending down the Missouri, up the Ohio and then northeast toward Newfoundland.

The cool wave will be due to cross the Rocky mountains about the 10th, the central valley about the 12th and the eastern states about the 14th.

Theology and Science.

It is needless to deny that there is an apparent antagonism, in the minds of many people, between science and theology, but the grounds for this antagonism are only apparent and not real. In these papers the laws of nature have been closely discussed, without reserve, going back to the beginnings and as they will in the near future, be still more closely discussed it is well at this time, perhaps, to have a fair understanding with theologians.

Every person should have a high regard for all sincere, earnest, industrious and intelligent ministers whose duty it is to discuss and teach moral and revealed theology, and any effort to bring a conflict between that class of teachers and those engaged in scientific research is useless and unprofitable.

The scientist who is engaged in the study of the physical forces of the universe is necessarily a student of natural theology that Webster defines as being: "The knowledge of God from his works, by the light of nature and reason."

The same authority defines revealed theology as being: "That which is to be learned only from revelation."

There can be no conflict between the two, for one has reference to that which can only be learned from revelation and therefore cannot be reached by observation, by reason, nor by the light of nature. It is that which cannot be proven or established by any material or physical proof at this time, and therefore depends on faith.

On the other hand, those who interpret revealed theology cannot establish any dogma contrary to anything that is now known and susceptible of being proven to be a truth. As an example: An interpreter of revealed religion cannot now establish that the earth is the fixed center of the universe, with the sun, moon and stars revolving around it every day.

On the other hand, that which is a proper subject of revealed theology cannot be disproven by scientists, because it is entirely beyond their reach, their reason, beyond the light which nature sheds upon it. As an example of this we may point to the fixed laws of nature. What proof can scientists bring to bear on the origin of these laws? We know they are fixed, and so far as any proof that science can discover they are unchangeable, but their origin is forever hidden in secret to science and therefore is a question that only revealed theology can deal with.

For these reasons we must draw the line between revealed theology where science fails to possess reasonable proof and therefore there can be no quarrel between science and theology, and in these discussions of creation it must be distinctly understood that the existence of a Creator whom theologists call God, is not denied and not discussed. Science cannot discuss such a question.

There is another kind, called moral theology, which Webster defines as: "That which teaches the divine laws as they relate to moral character and conduct." This has no reference to what we believe, but to what we do, and it is not to be presumed that anyone engaged in the discussion of natural laws would so far forget the duty due to humanity as to interpose aught against any proper efforts of theologians in teaching good morals.

These remarks appear to be necessary to allay any fears that may arise as to a conflict between these discussions and those engaged in teaching the basic principles of religion. There are certainly two distinct fields, one occupied by theology, the other by science, and the one of demarkation is so distinct that there can be no mistake as to the sphere of each. Going in either direction, one ends where the other begins, and that which will establish one is not evidence in the other.

The theologian should be an advocate of scientific research, for this only opens up to view the vastness of the created, the harmony of all material things, and this research will bring every true scientific mind to a point beyond which it can never go and where it can realize that if the origin of these fixed laws are, or are ever to be known, that knowledge must come by revelation from the Great Supreme.

It is hoped that these expressions will bring every lover of truth to the aid of such investigations as these papers contain.

FACTS FROM FINDLAY.

The New Year Starts Off Very Encouragingly.

Farmers Taking an Interest in Sugar Beets—Receptions—General Mention.

Findlay, O., Jan. 2.—(Special)—Mr and Mrs. W. A. Lear gave a brilliant reception at their home on Garfield avenue last evening in honor of the marriage of their son, Mr. Harry Meichling, to Miss Bessie Taylor, of Cleveland. About one hundred guests were present to extend their good wishes. Wineland's fine orchestra furnished the music.

New Year's Day.

The first day of the new year passed off very quietly, nothing of a startling nature occurring. Business was partially suspended. A number of private weddings occurred. The Y. M. C. A. parlors were thrown open in charge of the Young Ladies' Auxiliary to receive the many friends of this most worthy institution. A lunch was served.

The Charity ball given by the young ladies at National hall concluded the days' festivities. It was a gratifying success. Nearly five hundred tickets were sold. The weather was dark and gloomy, with slight showers in the afternoon.

Double Wedding.

A very pretty double wedding occurred in this city on New Year's at the home of the bride's parents on Hinkle avenue. The contracting parties were Mr. Chas. Saunders to Miss Cora M. Augsledt and Mr. D. Aisle, of Cleveland, to Miss Lily Augsledt. Rev. J. R. Mitchell, of the First Presbyterian church, officiating. It was a very happy affair.

Ordered Off the Docket.

The balance of new cases against the men implicated in the famous Oman robbery were ordered stricken from the docket by Judge Johnson, who was here for a short time on Thursday giving his decision in a number of cases which were left open. He then adjourned the present term of court sine die. A large number of cases were disposed of during the term.

Ten Days in Jail.

James Pendleton, a well-known saloon man of McComb, has been sent to jail for ten days by Judge Kerns, of the probate court, on the charge of keeping his saloon open on Sunday. This sentence was a complete surprise to all concerned.

The village of Mt. Cery, this county, is soon to have a G. A. R. post. About forty old battle-scarred veterans have already signed the roll.

During the year 1891 there was a total of 470 marriage licenses issued in this county, being an increase of 58 over 1890. The largest number were issued during December.

A notice has been issued to the farmers of this county for a mass convention soon to be held in this city to see how many of them will engage in raising sugar beets. This step is necessary to secure the proposed sugar beet factory and refinery. The farmers are taking a great interest in the proposed new industry.

For everal years a pair of storks built their nest annually in the park of the Castle Ruheleben, in Berlin. A few years ago one of the servants placed a ring with the name of the place and the date on the leg of the male bird, in order to be certain that the same bird returned each year. Last year the stork came back to its customary place, the bearer of two rings. The second bore the inscription: "India sends greeting to Germany."

NO CORONER IN FULTON.

Wauseon, Jan. 2.—(Special)—Both parties overlooked the matter of coroner in the conventions last fall, and in consequence thereof Dr. Miley steps out and no one is qualified to fill his place. Verily in Fulton all men are bashful, and the office must seek the man.

WRECK AT TIFFIN.

Tiffin, O., Jan. 2.—(Special)—Six cars of a westbound Baltimore & Ohio freight train were derailed over the River street tunnel, and delayed trains on the B. & O. and Big Four roads.

The accident was caused by a detached portion of the train colliding with the forward half. Wrecks occur at this point with painful regularity.

January 13—Arrive at Auburn, Cal., 6 a. m., leave Auburn 10 a. m., arrive at San Francisco 4 p. m.

The committee has arranged with the Wagner Palace Car company for a special trian to and from California on such favorable terms that it will be enabled to return delegates at a considerable reduction of the portion of the assessment received in response to the circular of December 26, 1891.

Inability to make equally favorable terms with the Pullman Palace Car company necessitated the change of route from the itinerary formerly sent out, which is indicated above.

Skirmishing and reconnoitering duties are especially encouraged in the Russian army, the men selected as especially qualified wearing a badge consisting of a compass with crossed swords in silver.

BABY A SOLID SCAB.

Torturing Disease of Blood and Skin Many Doctors Fail—Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

I have a sister troubled with blood or skin disease. It commenced when about one year old. We would try one doctor and then another, and it seemed like they were glad to get rid of it. When they would commence, they would say it is easy dried up and cured, but at last they would say it could not be cured. It ran on about two years. We had tried all the doctors around, and they had failed. I saw your advertisement in the paper, and wrote you for directions and you sent me a copy of your book at once. We then got CUTICURA REMEDIES and used it. It dried up the sores and healed them up right away. Her face, head and parts of her body were a solid scab. The way it would commence it would raise a small lump under the skin, then became a small pimple and itched so that she got no rest night or day, and she would scratch them, and yellow matter would come out of them and they would keep spreading and itching. I am sure from what I know of the CUTICURA REMEDIES they are the best medicines for scrofula, or blood or skin diseases that any one can use.

HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Our Long-Lost Rose Returns—Aunt Hepzibah Gives a Helpful Hint —Absent-Minded People— A Bright Domestic Story From Mr. Cowan.

IT IS TIME YOU CAME BACK.

It is time you came back, my darling!
You were never so late before;
For the vine has cast its lingering leaves
Outside of your waiting door.

It is time you came back, my darling!
For this heart is aching sore,
And there's nobody left in the whole wide world
To give what you had in store.

It is time you came back, my darling!
O God! and for evermore
My soul must keep saying this idle thing
Till it wafts to the shore.

THE END OF ALL.

After the sunshine, night;
After the summer, rain;
After days of delight
Come days of pain.

After the darkness, light;
After the winter, spring;
After Love's death, a blight
On everything.

A NEW KIND OF GARDEN.

O, weary mothers mixing dough,
Don't you wish that food would grow?
Your lips would smile, I know, to see
A cooky bush or a pancake-tree.

No hurry or worry or boiling pot;
No waiting to get the oven hot;
But you could send your child to see
If the pies had baked on the cherry-tree.

A beef-steak bush would be quite fine;
Bread be plucked from its tender vine;
A sponge-cake plant our pet would be;
We'd read and sew 'neath the muffin-tree.
—The Household.

OUR DEAD.

Now all is over; yet we frame
Our secret thoughts about him still,
And in our prayers his well-loved name
Glides in without our conscious will.
Our wistful eyes where'er they roam
Find traces of his presence yet;
The empty room, the silent home,
Can speak, and bid us not forget.

It is difficult to believe that all the foolish questions that department editors answer in their columns are bona fide inquiries; and more difficult still to understand why a writer should "make" such texts. Mr. Talmage says "people constantly write to me and ask, 'Do you believe in women reading novels?'" Why women? Do the weak sisters need different mental pabulum from their brothers? There are different kinds of women and different kinds of novels, and how should Mr. Talmage be able to prescribe food for minds of which he knows nothing at all only their weakness, in not being able to find out for themselves by the time they are grown to womanhood what is good for them?

This assumed helplessness of women may be very engaging, adroitly managed, but is sometimes very disgusting. A woman of mature years and excellent judgment asked "her pastor" if she should allow her daughters to indulge in dancing, even at private parlor parties? The pastor said he "could not believe that dancing, under any circumstances, had an influence for good," so the girl staid at home and cried her eyes sore while her young companions frolicked around to the time and tune of violin and piano. (It is not pertinent to the point at all to add that within a few weeks the careful adviser was suspended from his ministry for shocking immoralities). Why shouldn't the mother know better than any man, however wise, where it is advisable for her daughter to go? She has been learning her child's nature day by day, while he has been studying the musty tomes of doctrinal theology, the ethics of which nowhere touch the doubts that are troubling her. And, supposably, the good Lord hears the mother's prayer for guidance.

One is almost forced to conclude that the reason persons ask these silly questions that are put into print is because they want to write a letter to the editor or the minister and catch his notice and the attention of others for a brief occasion, posing perhaps as such inquiring, tractable, conscientious souls. This may sound unkind, but there is provocation for it.

Absent-Minded People.

Busy people are likely to be pre-occupied or, apparently, absent-minded. Sometimes they pass their best-known associates on the streets, brushing their very garments, without the least recognition of the fact. Names get away from them and refuse to be captured and no end of humiliation results. They pass their own street corners and go off in unreasonable tangents. One day a gentleman, not a thousand miles from present writing, went to the bath-room for a hasty plunge and his wife to the dining-room to overlook arrangements for the guests that were expected shortly to arrive. Time passed on as it always does, if you notice. Presently a distressed voice was heard at the bath-room door: "John, what has become of you? dinner has been waiting a half hour."

"For pity sake, Mary, have it served," plead the long-lost husband. "I will come down as soon as I can dress."

He confessed to her, later, that he had forgotten all about the company and the dinner, and everything else but a certain business project he was turning over in his mind, and had been sitting on the edge of the bath tub wiping first one foot and putting it back in the water, then the other. How many times he did this he will never know, or how many times more he might have done it if her voice had not recalled him to himself.

A Toledo woman who shall be nameless here has a deal of trouble remembering names. Some one told her to try the power of association. She did so. Miss Fox called and she charged herself to remember the animal, to recall the name by when they should meet again, which chanced to be soon, when "My dear Miss Wolf," was the greeting to the astonished girl. The same lady was in the midst of a large assembly when she bethought herself to make acquainted two dear friends of hers, and hastened to bring them together for the introduction. This accomplished, the names of both of them left the woman's mind and refused to come back. It was exceedingly awkward and ludicrous. She confessed her weakness with many apologies and the two introduced themselves, assuring her of their full and free forgiveness.

A recent story of the southern writer, Mary E. Bryan, is similar to this. Her parlors in New York are often thronged with literary people and but for her unfortunate forgetfulness she would be one of the model hostesses of the metropolis. As it is, those who know her best rather insist upon enjoying her odd mistakes. She had a number of new people at the reception in question, and passing around the room with a cultivated and scholarly gentleman she expressed herself as desirous of presenting to him a new acquaintance, one of the most brilliant ladies she had met for a long time. The gentleman was delighted, of course, and the two made their way through the crowded room to the place where sat the lady in question, happily, disengaged for the moment. Mrs. Bryan begged to be forgiven, but the lady's name had escaped her when the gentleman came to the rescue by saying, "No matter, Mrs. Bryan, I know the name well, it is the same as my own; the lady is my wife, and I heartily indorse all the pleasant things you have been saying of her."

A business woman who rarely makes a complete change of toilet for an evening, was preparing to attend a swell reception. She slowly disrobed and deliberately began putting on her night gown, when the evening dress laid across a chair, caught her eye and brought her back to the proper frame of mind.

The dear old grandma who rushes around the house hunting for her glasses when they are on the top of her head all the time, is a familiar figure in every day history; but the professional man who put on his door "Will be back in 10 minutes," closed it and then, returning to get his umbrella, sat down to await till the ten minutes should expire when the proprietor would be in, is one of the worst cases on record.

The Springfield Republican has no such word as "actress" in its vocabulary. Doctress, editress and authoress were long ago dropped; why not actress? Why not as properly say preacheress and teacheress? There is no longer sex in the professions, and since women, married as well as single, have learned to use their own Christian names, there is no need for further distinction.

A Story of Woman's Devotion.

Romance never gave a truer picture of womanly devotion than has recently been outlined to me.

I shall never forget my first impression of Uncle John. At church one evening not two years ago I saw a gentleman with my friend, Miss Fannie. A fine physique, noble head crowned with silver-white hair, and an intellectual face, made up a personality that once seen was never forgotten. I questioned Miss Fannie and learned that Uncle John and his wife, Aunt Lydia, were New Yorkers, royally born and royally endowed with gifts of mind and heart.

In their early married life they had come to California, but in all the rush and struggle of this new country he had never been untrue to the subtler, finer instincts of true manhood, so the many that rush in where angels fear to tread outdistanced him in accumulating the gold of this world. She, from girlhood, having pulmonary trouble, had lived apart from gay and madding crowds, a true home-keeper, a sympathizing friend, a frequent visitor in the sick room, the idol of her large circle of acquaintances.

Three score years passed and younger men crowded Uncle John out and seeing their small hoard gradually lessening they took advantage of the stipulations of the "Crocker Home" and secured a place for life in that lovely retreat. (No first-class hotel has finer appointments).

Uncle John had his own ideas about the curious gaping crowd that love to look upon death and burial and once said to Aunt Leydia that he wished she might perform all those sad, tender offices for him. She, like Mary of old, treasured all this in her heart.

John was her idol. She had long thought he would die suddenly. Two months of restful quiet in the new home, the favorites of all connected with the place, their fortieth wedded anniversary came. A few favored friends spent the evening with them, then they were alone; he preparing for the night's rest, suddenly staggered to his bed exclaiming, "My head." She assisted him to lie down; unconsciousness settled upon him. Aunt Lydia knew then in that supreme moment that her prayer for years was about to be answered, that she could have John all to herself in those last moments. From her knowledge of sickness she knew that no earthly aid could avail, so she went with him through the dark valley, and when the shadow was deepest at the river's brink he left her, and she was alone with the precious dust; and how tenderly, how exultingly she set about robing it for the burial, and so in the morning they found her, calm, radiant, thankful that she had been permitted to do for John as he had wished. Children had not been born to them; they were all to each other.

Aunt Lydia was waited upon by the managers of the Home and offered her money back should she choose to go to friends or relatives. "No," she answered. John and she had lived there two happy months, there he had left her and there she too would wait till the call came. God grant it may not be long. ROSE.

Waste Not, Want Not.

Such an old-fashioned saying, is it not? good friends of the Household. We even had it in our copy-books, more years agone than some of us care to count now. Our grandmothers and our maiden aunts dinned the precept in our ears, on every possible and many unnecessary occasions. In season and out of season we heard it, until at last we believed, as firmly as we belived our catechism, that "saving" was one of the chief ends and aims of life—woman's life, that is. For did you never notice that it was "the girls" rather than "the boys" to whom and for whom the adage was iterated and re-iterated?

Now the proverb itself I am not going to attack. Heaven forbid! The wisdom of our forefathers, and more particularly of our foremothers, is in it. But the application of it to our own every day life is proper subject for criticism. What do women want most?

Dear Hostess, might we not have a symposium of Bee Householders on this question? How I should like to read an opinion from each and every one of them, as to what woman wants most. Patience Prim, Lisbet, Zenobia, Bessie Barton, Blanche, Prac, L. C. H., all our bright correspondents at Adrian, and all the rest of them, may we not hear from each what, in her opinion, women wants most? For myself, and that brings me back to the question of the former paragraph, I think.

What woman wants most is time. The world is moving with such a whizz, there is so much going on, and going by, and our hands are so full we cannot grasp at half the things our eyes and hearts covet. "I have no time for it," is the sighing answer of so many women as they refrain from reading the news of the day, or a good, new book; from taking the little trip for health's sake; from joining the club of bright women where they know they could do good and get good. "I have not time" to go to the concert, or to play, or to pay social and refreshing visits to near friends. So father goes, and the children go; father and the children read and keep abreast of literature and the times. And mother—having no time—is left behind.

Now if it be true that we shall not want what we do not waste, where is our mistake? I fancy the indignant eyes of the sisterhood will flash at the suggestion that they "waste" time. Are they not the first to arise, and the last to retire? Without doubt. And perhaps here they waste time that should be wisely spent in sleep. Are they not busy, all the long hours between waking and sleeping? Without doubt? And perhaps in these hours are many minutes wasted over unnecessary trifles, minutes that in the aggregate make hours enough for reading the book, listening to the concert, attending the club. Time is wasted that is not put to its best use. That sounds like a proverb, too, and if it hasn't been heretofore, let some one put it in a copy book, and raise it to that dignity. Listen to this:

"A lady in this village," says the Windham county (Conn.) Transcript, "who has been married and kept house for 56 years, and raised a family in the meantime, has only bought in those years one paper of needles and a half paper of pins When asked how she managed to use so few pins, she replied, that when she lost one she hunted till she found another to fill its place."

And pins are five cents a paper, and there are almost 300 pins to a paper. I have no doubt this Windham county lady in the more than half century of her pin-picking-up existence has wasted hours enough to make herself a Caroline Herschel (provided she had the other necessary qualifications). Think of a pin worth about one-sixtieth of a cent, and then think of wasting ten always precious minutes hunting for one.

Few women probably have the "saving" mania to the extent of this one, but along this line of saving lies the mistake of too many of them. Hereafter, when I hear women sighing for time, I shall think of the Connecticut woman. They are "saving" something else, by "wasting" precious time.

SCRAP BASKET.

Mrs. Burton Harrison in the Young Ladies Journal defines the "400." It is "the appellative of the select body whose names are most often seen in print as participants in the active gaieties of New York." It doesn't stand at all for "the best people," only for those who entertain and get entertained, and the society journals tell about it. It is well to have these things thoroughly understood. If you want to belong to metropolitan aristocracy, buy your way into society and get your gown and jewels described by Jenkins. If your name appears often you are one of the "select," the "400." See?

A gold pencil-case, representing a quill, with diamonds and rubies studded in the center in the form of a clover, is among the novelties in jewelry.

How Does Katie Know?

Kate Field expresses her opinion that a woman to be agreeable must listen. "Keep a man wound up," she says, "look as though you were hanging on his lips, and he'll think you charming."

Give It Up.

A woman correspondent asks, "if women don't want to vote what harm will it do to grant them the privilege? Men make their choice; some of them have to be hired to vote, others have to be borne in a coach and four, while some are so anxious about the exercise of their rights and the welfare of their country they will vote twice if they are not watched."

And I love her very dearly; then, blackbird, stop a minute,
And tell me where she's wandering through the long sunshiny hours.

"BUZZER BABY'S" DENTAL OPERATIONS.

Nectarina and I managed to bring the baby safely through his first summer's teething, by exercising the greatest precautions against those dreaded foes of babyhood: cholera infantum, croup, measles, the various ailments of children that are characterized by a "breaking out," and his brother—the most insidious and dangerous of all dangers.

'Tis said that in politics there is nothing more fatal than placing one's self in the hands of ones friends. That is the kind of disguised danger that constantly beset our darling. Boo was his warm-hearted, doting friend. One couldn't easily be on one's guard against him, because it was hard to mistrust the actions of so loyal a devotee as Boo was, to Buzzer Baby. Misdirected zeal is the worst thing in the world to provide insurance against, because it is just as really zeal as the other sort and you can't very well seem to doubt that it isn't loaded until it has gone and done its mischief.

But, knowing that parental vigilance was to be the price of our baby, we cheerfully paid the price and saved the baby from Boo's unselfish but unsafe ministrations, with only such slight mishaps as two or three upsets of the cradle; the surreptitious shearing of more than half of his cherished ringlets; a mad caper for a block down a steep hill with the baby carriage as a private coach to which Boo was attached as engine, full steam up; the adulteration of the contents of his nursing bottle with carmine ink to make it like the pink ice-cream Boo had partaken of in a cafe, and sundry others which need not here be mentioned.

Suffice it to say that our hearts got used to standing still at any sudden commotion in the nursery, and then throbbing so violently as almost to burst the respective pericardiums thereof, that it was hardly reasonable to expect anything like normal, seventy-beats-a-minute action of them any more.

But, Baby now had four of the cutest, pearliest little darlings of teeth that ever peeped out of the pink cushions in which nature had set them—though I am bound to admit that as a setter in this line nature fools away an awful lot of time, and makes the recipient of her tardy favors, and all the family connections, a mint of trouble about so small a matter.

Boo had shared in the impatience, himself, to have those teeth through and no more false alarms or gum rings. He had heard it mentioned from time to time that Baby's teeth were coming, and I suppose it was our fault that we had omitted to give him an intelligent idea whence they were expected to arrive.

We had thoughtlessly left him to conjecture, and the error of his conclusion was natural to an untrained mind. Doubtless his childish reason had cogitated long and deeply before arriving at it. It is logical to suppose that having studied the baby's anatomy in an upward direction, and noting the poverty of the appendages with which nature usually decorates the crown of the head, he had sighed over the hopelessness of expecting anything from so barren a source, and turned his eagle eye toward the soles of the feet. Anyhow, that is the way he turned, though it is a metaphor hardly justified by the facts to mention the eye alone as an accessory to the turning. A number two Faber lead pencil well sharpened and probed downward internally bore off most of the honors of the occasion, or was hunting for them to bear, in the regions of the palate, where it might have inflicted irreparable injury had not a providential interference saved the child.

It is needless to say that the mysteries and unexplorable source of the dental appendages which were looked for was explained at once, so as to head off any further original investigations of so searching a character.

But that did not shield them from scrutiny after their arrival. Dozens of times did the ruby lips have to be parted by mamma's fingers to disclose the dainty ivory treasures that had been so tardy in showing themselves.

Boo had some doubts at first about their being sharp enough for the duties soon to be required of them and but for one slight circumstance I presume his absorbing interest in all that pertained to the welfare of his brother would have led him to the invention of some means of artificially sharpening them. The circumstance was slight, as I have said, but sometimes the highest excellence is done up in small packages. This was—four of them—and they proved so effectual that a second application was never needed.

It happened one day as he was admiring the white beauties and scouting about their headquarters with one of his fingers, with the effect of gagging the baby, that the young owner of the subjects of his solicitude and attentions took a sudden notion to cut short the interview in rather a peremptory manner. The process, mechanically viewed, was simple in the extreme, consisting of a vertical motion of his jaws which brought them into close proximity with each other; but it like to have cut short something else beside the interview—Boo's index finger. As it was, it went decorated with four blood-shot cicatrices.

As an argument against scepticism, I never saw anything to equal it. It ought to be canonized and given a niche somewhere for the suggestion it contains to polemics. All doubts about the sufficiency of the degree of sharpness of the bran new teeth vanished like snow before a summer sky, and those teeth were forever secure on that score, together with the palate of the owner and all other appurtenances thereunto.

I don't know but the argument belonged, however, to that class which are said to prove too much. My suspicions may be unguarded and do injustice to a noble soul, but at any rate, influences combined later on to again jeopardize the "big four" of our household, as these teeth had proved to be.

Some of Boo's own milk teeth had become decayed by reason of excessive devotion to the sweetmeats that doth corrode, and a visit to the dentist had become necessary, in view of protecting the interests of the future comers into that field, who were expected to do life-long duty there.

By way of preparing his mind for such an ordeal, the supply of candy had been temporarily doubled and other available resources taxed to the utmost. Boo's mother read him some choice selection from the lives of the Spartan heroes, with a view of exciting emulation of the boy who endured the drops of burning sealing-wax upon his wrist, and the other one who allowed the fox to gnaw out his vitals, until his fancy was quite captivated, and he entered into the becoming of a modern Spartan with a zest.

By way of confirmation of the theory, however, that mind can exert a controlling influence over matter, so as to relegate physical suffering to the realm of the bugaboos, he straightway hunted up a stick of sealing-wax and a couple of boxes of matches and took the cat into silent partnership in the experiment that is to say it was silent in the beginning, and he didn't take her as far in as he intended to, owing to her modesty on the subject of tight squeezing and the fact that she had never cultivated a liking for either Boo or hot sealing-wax.

She incidentally emphasized her retirement from the concern in an impressive farewell speech—no gold watch presented. The impressions remained visible on Boo's hands and face several days afterward, and were the cause of the copious shedding of tears and court plaster. But the Royal Academy of Sciences never arrived at a more important scientific principle than was brought out by this little demonstration. It is the most brilliant elucidation of tit-for-tat of the century.

But Boo finally mustered up enough courage of the Spartan type, or his mother did for him, to have that tooth extracted. The bulk of his bravery was a day late. It came after the work had been done without his knowing of the solemnity of the moment until the sight of the blood that filled his mouth brought out the most agonizing shrieks, and it manifested itself chiefly in post mortem bravado of the it-never-hurt-me-a-bit order; "he wouldn't tare iss the toos-puller man pulled all oz zee tees out oz his swoat."

But the fine point of the whole transaction was his subsequent heroic efforts to make a Spartan of the same mould of Buzzer Baby. Having hunted up a pair of gas plyers of formidable dimensions and fine polish, for his delicate work, he proceeded in a scientific manner to make an accurate test of their reliability and adaptation by extracting two or three front teeth for a bisque doll that belonged to a young lady about the house. Having expeditiously performed this preliminary work to his satisfaction, he voted himself a D. D. S. and proceeded directly without calling for refreshments or summoning assistance, to inculcate in the baby that degree of Spartan fortitude commensurate with his years and high connections in life, while at the same time he essayed to relieve him of the troublesome necessity of ever having to follow in the calamitous footsteps of his illustrious brother on the highway that leads to the dentist's shop.

Luckily he had only got as far as a first solemn warning to baby to summon his will power for the ordeal, when his mother chanced to interrupt the little ceremony by which her darling was to be immolated on the altar of stoicism.

"It won't hurt oo but dust ze weest bit of a minit; and iss oo is bwave dust vite ze Dutz boy vas mama wead 'bout, oor papa vill be proud of oo and ze man vill wite oor name in ze boot."

These were some of the resources of classic lore with which he sought to ply the motives of Buzzer Baby, while he coaxed into position his unwieldy but formidable instrument.

The next minute the cruel steel would have been thrust into that rosebud mouth, perhaps to silence its merry voice forever; but the invariable rule of the household never to leave the baby alone more than half a minute at a time when Boo was awake, averted that awful fate and cut short Boo's imitativeness in this direction.

CHAT.

After a long silence, "Rose" is gladly welcomed in our midst. The pathetic little story she has to tell us, true in every line and letter, is an example of the devotion of the tender, loving heart, the one drop in the cup of life that keeps all the rest sweet and free from taint and corruption. "Uncle John's wish is that of many another; that only loving hands shall dress the poor clay that has tenemented the soul, for its last, long sleep. It has been the torture of some sensitive persons when lingering illness gave them time to meditate on the after-part of the daily tragedy—that their poor bodies that seem so much their very selves must be given into the hands of strangers whose hurried, perhaps rude, professional touch seems sacreligious. We love these frail forms of clay. The soul of our dear ones looked through those eyes, and those lips that are turned blue and cold daily blessed us with their gentle words. Why must they be treated like dead animal flesh? To be sure, that is what they are, with the soul gone out forever, but can we—would we if we could—crush out the sentimentality that veils them still with the glory of the living spark, the selfhord, the feeling of hallowed association that reaches out in the dark and refuses to be divorced from its object? Chat once saw a fond mother comb out the golden ringlets of her dead baby and robe its tiny form for the casket, talking tenderly and caressingly to the deaf ears all the time. She has since been heard to say it was such a comfort to her whenever she thought of Artie asleep in his casket that his mamma dressed him for his bed just as she always did.

And another time, at the funeral of a loved husband—a Society funeral, where there were uniforms and rituals and a degree of pomp and display. "Oh," said the stricken wife, "if I could only take my dear one away from all this out into God's quiet city with a few near friends to assist and sympathize and lay him quietly away, how it would comfort me. It seems that all this ceremony must weary him, he was so tired when he went to sleep and he wanted only me to watch by him." One is glad to note that women are becoming professional undertakers.

"Uncle Frank," with his delightfully real narrative of domestic happenings, is with us once again. He dropped in upon your Hostess at headquarters this week and said very pleasant things about our Household. He is such a busy worker, a call from him is appreciated. When he was asked how he could edit a half dozen Sunday school periodicals, write stories for a half dozen magazines and sketches and maxims for as many papers, he said, "Only by systematizing my work; I write in short-hand and have two type-writing transcribers." What a rapid age we live in. The man or woman who "gets there" must "hustle." (Slangy, but dreadfully true). And withal Uncle Frank finds time for domestic enjoyment and observation, as his sketches prove. No man writes these from imagination.

The suggestion of Aunt Hepzibah opens a wide field for discussion. If what woman wants most is what she most needs, then, indeed, it is "time," and does the Aunt, who is thrice welcome in our midst, say truly that some of us are wasteful without knowing it?

Plenty of Farce Comedy Next Week.

Something About Miss Paget, Who Plays the Baroness Vera—A Pair of Jacks and the Fat Men's Club.

Clever Effie Ellsler and a splendid company presented the old-time favorite "Hazel Kirke" to two good sized audiences at Wheeler's yesterday afternoon and evening. The play is well known and the company with Miss Ellsler is composed largely of the people who originally produced the play at Madison Square Theater New York, years ago.

People's Theater.

A Pair of Jacks, better than ever, will be the attraction at People's Theater all this coming week. The play since seen here last has been rewritten and is now considered by those who have seen it to be one of the best farce comedies on the road. The cast this season is as follows:

Judge Jack—Mr. Louis Wesley.
Dr. Jack—Mr. Edward See.
Prof. Jenkins Queer—Mr. Sol Aiken.
Frank Howard—Mr. Chas. B. Winans.
Smooth Sharpe—Mr. Thomas Peasly.
Pocahontas Smart—Miss Julia Aiken.
Glorioso Smart, her daughter—Miss Dell.
Zetta—Dudie Tracy.
Hetty Hopes—Miss Ida Tracy.
Letty Still—Miss Grace Haywod.
Netty Bright—Miss Delous Sloan.

Miss Ffolliott Paget.

Miss Ffolliott Paget, who will appear at the Wheeler opera house Wednesday, Jan. 6, as the Baroness Vera, in Augustin Daly's successful comedy, "The Last Word," is of English birth and descent, and is distantly related to the famous Kemble family, whose names are so honorably associated with the history of the English stage.

Miss Paget made her debut in 1883, at the New Theater Royal, Portsmouth, with the Vokes family, in a musical farce-comedy, "In Camp." Her early inclinations had been toward the lyric, rather than the dramatic stage, but preference was given to the latter at the earnest solicitation of Mrs. Dallas Glyn, the Shakespearean actress, who predicted for her pupil a brilliant career in the higher branches of the serious drama. Miss Paget's early engagements were in comedy, however, and her subsequent successes have heretofore been chiefly in that line. Her first appearance with Charles Wyndham's company as Mrs. Martlett in "The Candidate," led to renewed engagements at the Criterion theater, London, and extended altogether to a period of five years.

Among her principal successes were Lade Osterly in "The Candidate," Mrs. Stembold in "Still Waters," Kadoojah in "The Circassian," and the title role in "The Dowager." Associated with such admirable character comedians as William Blakely, George Giddens and David James, Miss Paget achieved a well-earned success in the theaters of London. Miss Paget's Baroness Vera is a remarkably clever and original impersonation.

The Fat Men's Club.

Thursday and Friday nights next week the Wheeler will be occupied by that mountain of adipose tissue, J. C. ("Fattie") Stewart and his jolly company of comedians, singers, dancers, acrobats and fun makers in the revised and purified Fat Men's Club, and the scenes of initiation into the secret order will be given in full with vim, vigor and virility. The Age-Herald, of Birmingham, Ala., says: "When the jolly favorite (J. C. Stewart) produced his farce comedy, the Fat Men's Club, here last season, it made an instantaneous success and was indorsed by the press and public in terms of unstinted praise. Mr. Stewart promised us this year that it would be better than ever, and his promise was fully kept; for never has an audience been amused and entertained to a higher degree than that of O'Brien's last night."

Oberlin Glee Club.

A delightful entertainment was that given by the Oberlin Glee club at the Central Congregational church last night. Some splendid musical talent is displayed by members of the club, and every number was excellently rendered.

Dramatic Notes.

The Emma Juch Opera company is again in trouble, this time in Charleston, S. C.

Patti is expected to arrive in New York to-day or to-morrow on the City of Paris. Nicolini and Arditi come with her.

De Mille's royalties on A Lost Paradise, which he borrowed from the German of Fulda, for two weeks in Chicago were $1,398.35. Pretty big pay for an adapter.

Katie Emmett, in the Waifs of New York, has played to crowded houses at the People's theater every night this week and will appear for the last time this evening.

Francis Wilson's new opera, The Lion Tamer, was produced for the first time at the Broadway theater, New York, last Wednesday and it promises to be a big success. About one hundred and ninety-five people take part in the opera. The principal new comers to the organization are Mr. William Pruett, the baritone, and Mr. Seth M. Crane.

Nearly everything nowadays is made the subject of prizes, and it occasioned no surprise when a London paper offered $500 as a prize for the best play a few weeks since. A good many of the British playwrights are at work in competition for the prize, and the publishers of the paper hope that something notable will come from it.

The prospective establishment of an independent theater in New York has awakened much more interest in litarary circles than it has among actors and managers, most of whom are inclined to scoff at it as "a new-fangled notion put forward by a lot of people who have no practical knowledge of the stage," says the New York World. The fact is that very few people understand just what is meant by a free and independent theater or what its mission will be. It will be, if the present ideas of its incorporators are carried out, a theater for the production of pieces having a special value for a few people. For instance, its first representation will comprise a classic Greek play, an early English play, and one of the first of American pieces.

IF.

If, sitting with his little, worn-out shoe
And scarlet stocking lying on his knee,
I knew the little feet had pattered through
The pearl-set gates that lie 'twixt heaven and me,
I could be reconciled, and happy too,
And look with glad eyes toward the jasper sea.

If, in the morning, when the song of birds
Reminds us of a music far more sweet,
I listen to his pretty broken words
And for the music of his dimpled feet,
I could be almost happy, though I heard
No answer and but saw his vacant seat.

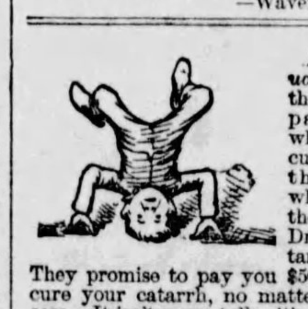
I could be glad if, when the day is done
And all its cares and heart-aches laid away
I could look westward to the hidden sun
And with a heart full of sweet yearnings say:
"To-night I'm nearer to my little one
By just the travel of a single day."

If I could know those little feet were shod
In sandles wrought of light in better lands,
And that the footprint of a tender God
Ran side by side with his in golden sands,
I could bow cheerfully and kiss the rod,
Since Bennie was in wiser, safer hands.

If he were dead I would not sit to-day
And stain with tears the wee sock on my knee;
I would not kiss the tiny shoe and say:
"Bring back again my little boy to me!"
I would be patient, knowing 'twas God's way,
And that he'd lead me to him o'er death's silent sea.

But, oh, to know the feet once pure and white
The haunts of vice have boldly ventured in,
The hands that should have battled for the right
Have been wrung crimson in the clasp of sin!
And should he knock at heaven's gate to-night
I fear my boy could hardly enter in.

—Waverly Magazine.



It isn't the usual way—it's just the reverse—to pay a patient when you can't cure him. Nevertheless, that's what's done by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. They promise to pay you $500 if they can't cure your catarrh, no matter how bad the case. It isn't mere talk—it's business. You can satisfy yourself of it, if you're interested. And you ought to be, if you have catarrh. It's faith in their medicine that's behind the offer.

It has cured thousands of the worst cases, where everything else failed.

You can be cured, too. If you can't, you get the money.

They're willing to take the risk—you ought to be glad to take the medicine.

It's the cheapest medicine you can buy, because it's guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You only pay for the good you get. Can you ask more?

Kate B. Sherwood,

Past National President of the Woman's Relief Corps, states:

"Having contracted a severe bronchial trouble while in the White Mountains, I have since been subject to frequent attacks. I can truly say that I have experienced more prompt, pleasant and enduring relief from the use of DAY'S BRONCHIAL CURE than any other, and most cordially recommend it to all suffering from similar affection."

Contains neither opium nor alcohol. For sale by druggists.

ANOTHER WAR IS OVER.

Baron Fava Is on His Way to Washington.

The Great Italian Fire Eater Will Return to National Capital and Peace Will Reign Once More.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Word has been received here that Baron Fava has sailed from Rome for Washington to resume his post as minister from Italy to the United States.

The Marquis Imperiali is in charge of the legation here, as he has been since the recall of Fava. The baron's name is still borne on the rolls of the state department as the Italian minister.

The return of Fava to his old post confirms the news sent from Washington some days ago that the United States has agreed to pay a small indemnity in money to the families of the two Italian citizens lynched at New Orleans.

This restores the entente cordiale between the two countries and the diplomatic incident is closed. It will be noticed that the settlement in this case has been made on the part of the United States by performance of the same acts of justice and reparation which this country is now demanding of Chili, and the prospects now are that within two or three weeks the Chilian incident will be closed in the same manner.

FOOLS.

But all folly is not despicable, any more than are all fools and who will dare to underrate this mighty guild when their achievements are recalled? They have been the consorts of queens, which assures their station in other countries, and they have amassed great fortunes, which confirms their respestability in this. They have been playwrights, counselors, heroes of novels from illustrious pens, founders of academies, and companions of the wisest.

Most of us have a decided antipathy to sayemwypf eth hmr thamar wawof tmm those faultless persons who always do and say the wise and proper thing. Possibly a consciousness of our own infirmities make them an irritation, though we will flatter ourselves that such perfection lacks piquancy, like an unsalted viand. A dash of salt, in the way of folly, would put them in touch with humanity at large, and we would find them vastaly more congenial for ordinary, social intercourse. The gentle Eli carries it even further when he says: "Take my word for this, friends, and say aa fool told it to you, if you please, that he who had not a drachm of folly in his mixture hath pounds of much worse matter in his composition.—Leslie's Monthly for January.

It is estimated that 100,000,000 of the Chinese people are engaged in the culture, preparation, sale, carriage and exportation of tea, and their interests are adversely affected by the rivalry of other countries.

DON'T DELAY TO

Stop that cough! Else the bronchial tubes will be enlarged and the delicate tissues of the lungs exposed to injury. No other medicine is so speedily operative in throat and lung troubles as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. A few doses have been known to break up an obstinate and distressing cough. Sufferers from asthma, bronchitis, croup, consumption, sore throat, and whooping cough find a sure relief in the use of this preparation. It soothes the inflamed membrane, promotes expectoration, and induces repose Try Don't be without it in the house. Sallie E. Stone, Hurt's store, Va., writes: "I have found, in my family, that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was always a certain cure for colds and coughs."

"Five years ago I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and had been given up by my physicians. I began to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and was completely cured."—Anga A. Lewis, Ricard, N.Y.

I CURE FITS!

When I say cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. All Shrunk Up —the flannels that are washed without Pearline; besides, they're worn out by hard rubbing. Wash flannels with Pearline, and they will be softer, brigher and better. They will last twice as long; they will look like new while they last. Every package tells how it's done; do as it says, and it will be done well.

Danger

As one wash is sufficient to ruin flannels, great care should be exercised as to the use of the many imitations which are being offered by unscrupulous grocers or peddlers. 291 JAMES PYLE, New York.

OPENS
Monday, Jan. 4, 1892.

Which Business College or Shorthand School shall I enter Monday? I would suggest that you visit the different schools of the city Monday and Tuesday, spend at least two hours in each, hear the teachers, note methods. Do not decide too hastily. Do not pay your tuition until you have spent at least one week in a school. The Toledo Business College gives you this privilege. Do not enter a school because a position is held out to you. All the schools of the city will do everything in their power to assist worthy students to positions; it is to their interest to do so. Go to the school that you think is most thorough after you have made a careful examination. Remember the Toledo Business College has been under the management of Mr. Davis for 10 years. Mr. Davis is a graduate in Arts also, of the Eastman Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Location:

Special Master's Sale

United States of America, Northern District of Ohio.

The Central Trust Company of New York Complainant, v. The Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Railroad Company and others, Defendants. Consolidated Causes. In the Circuit courts of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio, Western division, and for the Southern district of Ohio, Western division, and for the Eastern district of Michigan, and for the Western district of Michigan, Southern division. In equity.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern district of Ohio, Western division, entered in the above entitled cause on June 5, 1891, and of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern district of Ohio, Western division, entered in the above entitled cause on July 1, 1891, and of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern district of Michigan, entered in the above entitled cause on June 29, 1891, and of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western district of Michigan, Southern division, entered in the above entitled cause on June 30, 1891, and of an order of said circuit court of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio dated December 23rd, 1891, and of orders of said other circuit courts adopting the same, we, Benjamin F. Wade and Hiram F. Carleton, the Special Masters designated, by said decrees, will sell without appraisement, at public auction, to the highest bidder or bidders, in the United States court room, in the City of Toledo, County of Lucas, and State of Ohio, at three o'clock, p. m. on the 8th day of January, 1892, the property covered by and embraced in the consolidated mortgage of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Railroad Company, dated December 1, 1886. Excluding the Central Division, (being the property described in the first mortgage of the Cincinnati, Van Wert & Michigan Railroad Company, dated April 14, 1881), together with the proportion of equipment, material and supplies appertaining to the same which, upon the reference ordered in said decrees, shall be decreed by the court to properly belong to the same, and to be covered by said Consolidated Mortgage. Said property (excluding the Central Division) will be sold as an entirety, without appraisement or redemption. No bid will be accepted therefor from any bidder for a sum less than $450,000, nor from any bidder who shall not, if requested by the Special Masters, place in their hands, or deposit with them, as a pledge that he will make good his bid, if accepted by the court, the sum of $25,000 in cash or Consolidated Mortgage Bonds to the amount of $250,000 of principal.

Of the price for which said property shall be sold, there shall be paid in cash, at the time of the sale, a sum equal to the amount of cash deposit hereinbefore required, and also, at the same time, and from time to time thereafter, such further portions of said purchase price as the court may direct; and the court reserves the right to reject any bid, and to take and to sell said premises and property, upon failure of any purchaser for twenty days to comply with any order of the court requiring payment. The balance of the purchase price not required to be paid in cash may either be paid in cash, or the purchaser may satisfy and make good said balance of his bid, in whole or in part, by paying over the outstanding Consolidated Mortgage Bonds, and overdue coupons, or either, at such price or value as shall be equivalent to the amount that the holders thereof would be entitled to receive thereon, in case the entire purchase price were paid in cash. If any bid shall be accepted by the court, and the person making the same shall fail to comply with all the conditions of sale and all orders of the court with respect thereto, the sum deposited by the bidder shall be forfeited, and shall be applied as the court may direct.

Reference is hereby made to the said decrees for a more specific description of the mortgaged property therein ordered to be sold, and for further particulars of the terms and conditions of sale.

Established for the cure of all Skin, Blood Nervous and Private Diseases. In the treatment of which it is unequaled.

STRICTURE or difficulty in relieving the bladder cured without pain or instruments.

CATARRH and all diseases of the Skin, Blood, Heart, Liver and Kidneys treated with eminent success.

SPERMATORRHEA, quickly and PROSTRATORRHEA radically cured.

NIGHT EMISSIONS and SEXUAL WEAKNESS thoroughly and completely cured and a perfect restoration to health and manly vigor guaranteed.

RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, SCIATICA, PARALYSIS, NEURALGIA, ASTHMA and all diseases of the THROAT, LIVER, KIDNEYS, HEART and LUNGS quickly relieved and permanently cured.

THIS IS THE BEST equipped, the largest and most reliable Medical dispensary in the United States for the cure of the above named diseases as well as OLD SORES and ULCERS, FEVER SORES, ECZEMA, BARBER'S ITCH, etc., which are by the mode of treatment practiced at this institution rapidly and radically cured.

THE TREATMENT given at this Dispensary is peculiarly our own and is different from that given by any medical practitioner, the remedies used being the discoveries of our Dr. Samuel Charles Evans, who has given all of the best years of his life to their production and perfection. They are infallible. Their efficacy is amply attested by the thousands of cures that have been performed by our treatment. No one need suffer from the many ills above enumerated because we can guarantee a cure if the sufferer will but call at our Dispensary or write us.

OUR GUARANTEE IS NO CURE NO PAY. In proof of which we are willing and anxious to take the cases of RESPONSIBLE AFFLICTED PERSONS ON THAT BASIS. Those suffering from NERVOUS DEBILITY, the symptoms of which are a dull, distressed mind, which unfits them for performing the business and social duties of life, making happy marriages an utter impossibility, causing depression of spirits, evil forebodings of the future, feeling as tired in the morning as when retiring; lost manhood, trembling, confusion of thoughts, watery and weak eyes, constipation, paleness, pain and weakness in the limbs, etc., should consult us at once and immediately be restored to strong, vigorous MANHOOD.

YOUNG MEN

Who are victims of SOLITARY VICE—that fearful and health destroying habit which in each year of its ravages sweeps thousands upon thousands of young men of brilliant mind, great talent, strong manhood and bright prospects for the future to an early grave. All who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary vice should call at our Dispensary at once or on their inability to conveniently do that write us for advice and have sent to them free our "List of Questions" and Medical Book, which will, on receipt of four cents in postage stamps, be mailed under cover of plain envelop, sealed and free from observation. All cases and correspondence are treated with the confidence that our high reputation guarantees they will receive. Our remedies are safely packed in plain packages and sent to our patients in all parts of the country. Call on or address THE EVANS PRIVATE DISPENSARY, Cleveland.

Rev. Dr. Fish tied the knot in the most approved manner which united Mr. Wm. Clague and Miss Minnie Ewing for life. The wedding occurred on Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. F. Holland on lower Superior street, and was a very quiet affair. Mr. Clague is one of Toledo's well known plumbers, and an exemplary young man. The bride is a quiet and unassuming young lady, a favorite among her friends. The couple immediately went to housekeeping on Ontario street, accompanied by best wishes for a happy journey through life.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

TO OUR PATRONS, THE LABORING WORLD, AND THE PUBLIC IN GENERAL.

The boycott on the Pabst Brewing Co.'s Milwaukee beer has been officially raised, or declared off, by decision of the eleventh convention of the Federation of Labor, held at Birmingham, Ala., some time ago, and therefore there is no such boycott any more in existence. Now, as certain parties belonging to the brewing fraternity made it for some time their special business to call the attention of the people, and especially that of the working classes, to such now raised boycott, for the only purpose to hurt our business, as sole agents of the Pabst Brewing Co.'s beer, we, without intending to go into any details regarding such former boycott, deem it our duty to give our reasons for introducing the above named Brewing Co.'s beer in our city, by means of the following, clipped from the Grand Rapids, Mich., Democrat of Friday, Oct. 29, 1886, part of an answer written by the Toledo Brewing & Malting Co. to an appeal of some labor organization, to boycott their beer in Grand Rapids, Mich., at the very time of their introducing their beer at that place:

"Competition is the Life of Trade."

And now let us ask the Beer Brewers' Workingmen's Union what would be the condition in a city where there was only one butcher and one baker? Would not the lack of competition and the strife for the almighty dollar induce them to sell the poorest articles for the highest prices, and thereby injure our hard laboring class? Whereas, if there was a struggle, a vigorous competition there, goods of pure quality, at reasonable prices, would be insured. Is it to the interest of the Beer Brewers' Union, any other union, and the public in general, be they workingmen or capitalists, to oppose in any way an institution that has not wronged them in any way, but which comes here disposed to give goods of the best quality of manufacture at reasonable prices? The man who sells an imitation or adulterated article always fears the encroachment of the man who sells the pure article.

We consider the Grand Rapids Brewer Workers' Union too intelligent to do anything of that kind—the suspicion is raised that the appeal made has been more directly instituted by those employed in its manufacture.

In conclusion we will state that we have located here for the purpose of doing business, and shall endeavor by fair and legitimate means to increase our patronage and to give such patronage satisfaction.

"The world is wide; there is room for us all."

Very respectfully,

The Toledo Brewing & Malting Co.

The above is quite logical, and explains all we have to say in a very pointed manner, but at the same time it shows the inconsistency of our brewers in their action towards us while introducing Pabst Brewing Co.'s beer here, upon which to decide we leave to the public.

On the other hand, we like to raise the question, are we not entitled to the same right to furnish the consumers with the best grade of beer obtainable, and generally considered better than the product of our home breweries, as our brewers claim in Grand Rapids and many other cities and places?

But they tell the truth, they fear the competition of the superior quality of our goods and know that the public undoubtedly will appreciate a strictly pure and wholesome article.

In conclusion we wish to say to all our patrons, to the working people and the public in general that, in consideration of our well known desire to give the best satisfaction and our also well known sympathy with organized labor, we don't think that we have to fear any ill-will from any source whatever, and we don't fear it!

To those who appreciate a pure and wholesome glass of beer we like further to say: We are able to furnish you with the most desirable quality; and to those who take so much interest in our future welfare, we will simply state: "The world is wide, but we have come to stay, and we will stay and fight, if it takes all the year."

Yours very respectfully,

HOPPE & STRUB BOTTLING CO.

SPECIAL MEETING C. L. U.

Central Labor Union delegates are hereby notified of a special meeting to be held to-morrow (Sunday) at 3 p. m., at hall, for instruction of delegates to Columbus. ROBT. F. BOOTH, President.

Cattle fodder is now so scarce along the Rio Grande border that the animals are kept alive only on the nopals or prickly pears. They are cut down with a machete and piled on brush fires so that the thorns may be burned off and the coarse fruit warmed through. The cattle will have no other food until spring, when the grass begins to sprout. There is not even fodder enough for the oxen that are the beasts of burden in the country. A tax collector who recently made a tour of it reports that the long drought has reduced the people as well as their beasts almost to the verge of starvation.

Annual meeting Toledo Council, C. K. of A., to-morrow (Sunday) evening, at St. Michael's hall.

New waterworks, with a storage capacity of 17,360,000,000 gallons, are to be constructed for Birmingham, England. The supply is to come from the water shed of the Elan and Claerwen rivers in Mid-Wales, about eighty miles from Birmingham, where the land cannot be cultivated. The aqueduct from six reservoirs is to comprise nine miles of tunnel, thirty-five miles of conduits in excavations and thirty-five miles of iron pipes.

A WOMAN'S SCHEME.

How an Alleged Clairvoyant Fleeced a Young Country Girl.

A Startling Expose of the Methods Employed by Female Frauds to Fool Unsuspecting Victims.

At last the mask has been torn from the face of a fortune teller and clairvoyant healer. The veil of secrecy behind which a designing female fleeced a young country girl has been torn asunder by the vigilance of a Bee reporter.

The young woman who gives her name as Mary Maynard, is the light-haired, sweet-faced and somewhat ambitious daughter of a well-to-do Lenawee county, Michigan, farmer. Becoming somewhat tired of the monotonous humdrum life of the farm, and being desirous of perfecting herself in the dressmakers' art, Mary entered upon an apprenticeship in Toledo. By working long hours and strict attention to her task, the young woman made rapid progress in her chosen work. But the close confinement and lack of exercise began to tell on her health. The healthful color produced by wholesome living, fresh air and vigorous exercise of country life, began to fade from her cheeks. Miss Maynard became almost a physical wreck before she realized her real condition. Her extreme nervous prostration and kindred stomach troubles prevented her from refreshing sleep and from digesting the articles found on the daily bill of fare at her boarding house.

About this time poor Mary Maynard came in contact with an alleged fortune teller and clairvoyant healer, who resided on Erie street, and then went by the name of Madame La Fay, which has since developed to be only one of her many names. The madame won Mary's confidence by telling her fortune. The poor girl then explained to her how she had such terrible shooting pains through her body, fainting spells, sick headache, heart trouble, pains in the stomach after eating, and, as she said afterward in speaking to the reporter, "it seemed as though I had all the bad feelings that ever existed in the world." After Mary's recital of her troubles madam closed her eyes and pretended to go into a trance. Finally she roused herself and told the young girl that she had been conversing with a skilled physician who had died many years ago, and that he had told her how to cure the ailments of which Mary had spoken. Miss Maynard was so awe-stricken and then overjoyed at the prospect of regaining health that she said she was willing to do anything if the madame would cure her. The fortune teller then looked wise and declared that the medicines were very expensive, and that, if she would be cured, she must send home for $50 to pay the expenses.

When Mary's pleading letter was received at her parents' Lenawee county farm house, the mother and little sister wept, and the fond father drove to town and sent the $50. Time went on, and another letter came from Mary, saying that she was recovering, but the doctress demanded another $50 to complete the cure, and of course it was sent.

The fact that this fraudulent female was pretending to practice medicine without any diploma or any qualification whatever, came to the ears of the reporter, who, while investigating the matter, came across Miss Maynard, who told her story substantially as related above. The innocent, unsuspecting girl further said in answer to a question, that the madame had written her symptoms as related above on a piece of paper and had to go down town each time she wanted more medicine. This information, together with the fact that this woman, entirely ignorant of medicine, had actually nearly cured the girl, aroused the suspicions of the writer that the madame was a pretender and that she was secretly securing the aid of a live skilled physician instead of a dead one as she claimed.

A diligent watch by the reporter developed the fact that the alleged clairvoyant made frequent trips to the new block at 505 and 507 Summit street, between Oak and Orange. She was closely followed up the stairway and into the extensive offices of Dr. Kalkhoff, the great European specialist, where she got her bottle filled for her "poor sick friend," as she had explained to the doctor when she first came and got a DIET CHART of what her "poor friend" should eat and drink, and specific medicines for her stomach and nerves. The reader can imagine the surprise of Dr. Kalkhoff when the reporter informed him of the fraud and extortion of $100 that had been practiced by the "Madam" on her "poor sick friend." He said he frequently prescribed for those unable to visit him upon the filling out of one of his symptom blanks, and as the "Madam" had filled out the blank in detail, there was nothing in the case to arouse his suspicion. He consented to the reporter using his name in showing up the gross imposition practiced by this "Madam" in order that the public might be warned against the methods of robbery and deception practiced by fraudulent females on unsuspecting victims.

FAT KINGS.

The elderly king of Bavaria, of heavy build, with a dull, surly face, looked like a stout German farmer. The king of Wurtemburg made up for the smallness of his domains by the colossal bulk of his person. His stay at Vienna was cut short, owing to an unfortunate incident. So enormous was his development that in all the dining tables at home he had a semi-circular space cut out to enable him to sit down to his meals with comfort. It seems that no preparation had been made for him in the Austrian court dinner tables. One night a great banquet was given to which he was invited. In the course of the meal some remark was made which the king construed as a slight on himself. Wild with rage, he jumped up with such suddenness that the table, caught by his protuberant bulk, was overturned and all the dishes, plate, glass and decorations were hurled upon the floor with a fearful crash. His majesty fled from the room, pursued by shouts of laughter, and left Vienna that very night.—Temple Bar.

In the city of Buenos Ayres it is said that there are sixteen men for every woman, and that any decently good-looking woman that goes there can have her pick out of fifty eager suitors. In that country one never hears of a policeman beating an old woman and kicking over her newspaper stand. On the contrary women, old and young, are looked upon as something better than the average of humanity, and worshipped accordingly.

City Auditor's Office.

Toledo, O., Dec. 31st, 1891.

The committee on ways and means of the common council of the City of Toledo, Ohio, and the undersigned, invite sealed proposals at this office to

at 7 o'clock p. m. for the purchase of Street Improvement Bonds to the amount of Nineteen Thousand Two Hundred and Thirty-Five 86-100 ($19,235 86-100) Dollars, bearing date Dec. 21, 1891, and payable as follows:

One Thousand Two Hundred and Thirty-Five 86-100 ($1,235 86-100) Dollars on June 21st, 1893, and Two Thousand ($2,000) Dollars at the expiration of every six months thereafter, to and including December 21st, 1897, at the office of the city treasurer, with interest at the rate of five (5) per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually at the same place as evidenced by coupons to be attached to said bonds.

Said Improvement Bonds are issued pursuant to Section 2704 to 2707 of the Revised Statutes of the State of Ohio, and also under an ordinance of the common council of the City of Toledo, Ohio, "To provide for the issue of improvement bonds to pay the cost and expense of the improvement of Western Avenue, from Broadway to M. & E. Canal."—Passed Dec. 14th, 1891.

The denomination of these bonds; first payment one of $635.86 and one of $600; each payment thereafter four of $500.

The said bonds will be sold at not less than par and accrued interest, to the highest bidder.

Bidders will be required to state the gross amount they will pay for the bonds besides the accrued interest to date of delivery at Toledo, Ohio. They will also be required to deposit with each bid an amount of money or a certified check on some responsible bank equal to at least five (5) per centum of the par value of the bonds, so bid for, as a guarantee of good faith, and that the bid so made (if successful) will be fulfilled in accordance with the terms thereof, and the requirements of the law and ordinances. When the bids have been examined, and the award made according to law, all monies or checks deposited as guarantees shall be returned to the depositor, or held by the city auditor subject to his call, except that of the successful bidder, which shall be held and considered, and accepted as part payment of the bonds so awarded or sold, but should there be any repudiation of the contract or agreement, or refusal to accept and pay for the bonds so sold, then and in that case the deposit shall be forfeited to the city of Toledo, and shall become the property of said city, in compensation for loss and expenses attending the sale of said bonds and as liquidated damages for repudiation of bid. And no bid will be received if not accompanied by money or check aforesaid.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

Proposals should be addressed to the "Auditor of the city of Toledo, Ohio," and be indorsed "Proposals for improvement bonds."

W. T. WALKER, City Auditor.
